Stockings—Silk or Cotton? Not How Long—How Much Poverty and Wealth Kill A Chance for Ford

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The Kansas Industrial Court, fixing a minimum wage for working girls, finds part of the problem expressed as follows: "Should you include in young women's wages enough to let them wear silk stockings or should they be content with cotton stockings?"

The correct answer is, "neither one nor the other." Young women should wear cotton stockings five days a week to help the cotton industry, silk stockings on Saturday and Sunday to feel happy. Man is a foolish animal, woman a modest creature lacking self appreciation.

Give her silk stockings, and she feels sure of herself. Give her silk stockings and foolish man thinks more of her—sad, but true.

Therefore, necessary or not, silk stockings may make all the difference between a husband and no husband. The welfare of the nation demands plenty of children, therefore plenty of husbands.

Two French scientists of highest standing explain in Paris the possibility of injecting new cells into the muscles, lengthening life to 150 years at least—so they hope.

That would be good. Something better would be an injection into the brain, to make it LIVE MORE, by doing more.

A turtle from the Galapagos Islands lives four or five hundred years. It lives altogether less than Beethoven lived in an hour when he, stone deaf, unable to hear a sound from the orchestra, conducted his great work, of which he never heard a note except in his own magnificent brain. How MUCH you live, not how LONG you live, is what counts.

Once more: "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty and republics by wealth."

France is rich. America is rich. France has wealth of intelligence, marvelous industry, saving capacity. America has the wealth of unlimited, undeveloped possibilities, also two-thirds of all the gold in the world plus a fairly intelligent citizenship.

Curiously enough the two great republics of France and the United States are the nations that interfere with Russia, refusing to recognize her, preventing the Russian people from establishing their own government in place of the Czar's government.

You may not like the present government of Russia. That isn't the question. All birth is unpleasant and painful. You wouldn't have liked the revolutionary government of France either, when the heads of noble ladies and gentlemen were falling into the guillotine basket by dozens. But you wouldn't go back and stop that now if you could. You see the result.

Toward Russia our State Department acts like the old lady from the country, passing the elevator in the office building. She would have nothing to do with it and preferred to walk upstairs. That was a reflection on the old lady, not on the elevator.

Today, on the steamship Latvia twenty American tractors and eleven first-class American farmers, sent by the Federated Commission, start for the relief of Russia.

Soon they will be at work on Russian soil, showing Russian peasants American ways of getting crops. That is the right kind of invasion, also the way to fight famine. Prevention of trouble is future, rather than temporary cure, as John D. Rockefeller says, is what the world needs.

If Henry Ford would send five thousand of his tractors, with a hundred mechanics to teach Russians how to use the tractors, and one ship load of seed grain, he would do more to fight Russian famine than if he sent five million dollars.

A mixed-breed convict, part Indian, part negro, serving a three-year term in the Missouri penitentiary, is offered two million dollars for all lands that he owns. He will be out in three years when his term for forgery is up.

And he will be amazed to learn how the world has revised its opinion of him. Even now in the penitentiary he has changed from "that mongrel half-breed" to "that interesting convict that will soon have a few million dollars."

Even in this great, pure republic money makes a difference.

War is a dangerous educator. In a crowded New York street Vincent Terranova was found shot dead in a crowd. Others in the crowd were wounded. Nearby, abandoned on the car tracks, were found two sawed-off shot guns.

Several million men learned the value of the sawed-off shot gun as a deadly weapon in the course of the war. You cannot miss with buckshot. The unpleasant part is that the sawed-off shot gun is apt to kill others as well as the man you are after.

War, the business of killing at wholesale, leaves when it passes a good deal of killing at retail.

8 BOSTON DEALERS CALLED BY O'BRIEN

Charges of Collusion to Be Sifted Following Claims of Councillor Ford

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien of Suffolk County today began an investigation into charges that the coal companies supplying Bostonians are in collusion for fixing prices and that the people are being robbed.

Eight of the "coal barons" of Boston and vicinity were summoned to appear before the Suffolk County Grand Jury. They were Edwin Hamlin, president of the Metropolitan Coal Company; John Hunter of the Batchelder Coal Company, Frank Hitchcock of the Staples Coal Company, Samuel Smith of the Dorchester Coal Company, Ernest P. Burton of the Burton Coal Company, Charles McGovern of the McGovern Coal Company, W. D. Clark of the Boston Coal Company and Edward Baker of the Massachusetts Wharf Coal Company.

FOLLOW FORD CHARGES.

The investigation is the direct result of charges made before the City Council by Councillor Francis J. W. Ford, who has announced his candidacy for the district attorneyship.

Mr. Ford was summoned to appear before the Grand Jury as a result of that address. He charged the coal dealers of the city are members of a conspiracy to raise the prices of coal.

Asked by District Attorney O'Brien whether he was able to substantiate this charge or if it was based merely upon hearsay Councillor Ford declared that in his opinion the fact the price of coal to consumers is the same at all dealers, was enough to show there is collusion.

CHARGES PRICE FIXING.

At the hearing before the Grand Jury the Councillor and the District Attorney are reported to have had violent verbal clashes. Later Councillor Ford issued a statement in which he declared he had told the Grand Jury "that for several years past the price of coal to the consumer was uniform throughout the city, and that rises and declines in prices went into effect at all companies simultaneously. To Mr. O'Brien's comment that this was but a suspicion on my part, I said that the uniformity in price was the best evidence of price fixing."

Coal Dealer Advises Not to Buy Now

"If everyone orders next Winter's coal now, of course the price will remain high. The way to bring it down is not to order for some time. CHADWICK COAL YARDS, Newton Upper Falls.—Advertisement in the Newton Town Crier.

Novelist and Wife Who Have Parted

Writer of Romance Fails to Make Success of His Own Love Affairs

Mrs. Morris was a Virginia belle. Friends say she helped author to success.

AUTHOR AND YOUNGEST CHILD

Gouverneur Morris, famous short-story writer, and his younger daughter Bay. The girl is now fourteen years old.

AUTHOR MORRIS BEGINS ACTION FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, May 10. — Gouverneur Morris, novelist, short story writer and war correspondent, whose work has appeared in the high-grade magazines for fifteen years, has filed suit for divorce from Elsie Morris. They have been separated since February 15, 1918.

They were married on May 23, 1906, in New York. Mr. Morris has made his home here for a number of years. He has an estate twenty miles from Los Angeles. It is one of Southern California's show places.

Friends said today they were not surprised at the filing of divorce papers. Whether there will be another Mrs. Morris they would not say. The author's name has not yet been linked with any of the beauties in this part of the country.

The present Mrs. Morris conducts a beauty parlor in New York, known as "Primrose House." It is located in the fifties off Fifth avenue in a house once the home of Sothern and Marlowe. It is of Colonial interior, beautifully furnished, and is frequented by only the most exclusive. At private schools are the Morris' beautiful daughters, Patsy and Bay. The elder of the two is sixteen years old, and athletic. The younger, fourteen years old, is striving to become a writer.

Mrs. Morris is a beautiful woman. She was a Virginia belle at the time of her marriage. For ten years the couple lived happily. His wife, friends say, with untiring energy pushed him ahead to success as an author. When fame and fortune at last rewarded the untiring labors unhappiness crept in. The couple separated in California, Mrs. Morris going East with the children, where she opened "Primrose House."

COLLEGE IS STIRRED BY GAY JAZZ

Three Bates Students Suspended, One Dropped, After Palm Sunday Escapade

A jazz-band party and dance on Palm Sunday, in which two girls were whirled about in the arms of a dozen fresh men in one of the dormitories of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., has caused the dismissal of one student and the indefinite suspension of three.

John L. Miller, one of the three freshmen suspended, told of the Palm Sunday dormitory matinee at his home at No. 49 Standish street, Wollaston, today.

He revealed how a conscious-stricken freshie "spilled the beans" by secretly endeavoring to do the manly thing.

We wrote one of the girls, fearing she would carry out a desire to slip into the dormitories via the fire escape to "keep away." The note was opened by her mother and turned over to the police commissioner, who happens to be dean of men at Bates College.

There followed what proved to be similar to an explosion to the freshmen.

"The girls," said Miller, "were Julia McGillicuddy and Agnes Jordan, both of Lewiston. Pretty as pictures, too. Well, they came around Palm Sunday afternoon and some of the boys gave them the high sign.

"It was as dull as Palm Sundays usually are and someone suggested bringing them up and staging a dance. It was just as easy done as said.

"Five of the gang could murder ukuleles, so up came the girls and we put on the dance. It was a right nice party and didn't end until shadows slipped around and it was time to eat.

"We showed the girls to the door and they said they were coming back later. We didn't think they would, but along about 8 o'clock they showed up and we got scared. We didn't want girls in the dormitories after dark and held a council.

"It was decided to give them the gate. We went downstairs and told them we were sorry, but we couldn't have them up after dark. They threatened to climb in by the fire escapes. But we told them, never get caught sure. Finally we showed them off, but they said they would be back another time.

BUT GIRLS CAME BACK.

"Well, that's what caused the mess. One of the boys got scared they would return and wrote Miss McGillicuddy a note telling her, for her own sake, she better not try any fire escape entrance or she'd get in trouble along with the whole dormitory. Next thing we knew we were called up on the carpet.

"Then we got the letter and notified the police."

Dean Pomeroy, dean of men, being the police commissioner, got the letter. He sent for the girls, gave them the third degree and what did they do but hand out a list of Bates men they knew.

"The dean then investigated, laid down the law to a dozen students and had fifteen freshmen on the carpet. By the process of elimination he simmered the Palm Sunday episode down to four of us.

"Three of us confessed our part in it and were suspended. The fourth chap denied everything and was expelled."

KIDNAPERS OF GIRLS SOUGHT

Lawrence Victim of Auto Gang Held Prisoner Two Days in Camp

Lawrence, May 10.—Escaping from her abductors who held her prisoner in a lonely camp at Pleasant Valley, Metheun, since last Sunday, sixteen-year-old Marion Erlander returned to her home at No. 76 Spruce street.

To her mother she sobbed a story of outrage and indignation which she suffered at the hands of the four men who took her and her cousin away in an automobile. Her cousin, nineteen-year-old Lillian Johnson, escaped.

Marion said that they first took her to a camp at Canobie Lake, and after keeping her there for a couple of hours, removed her to the other camp.

Here she was kept prisoner until late Tuesday, when seizing an opportunity when the men were off their guard, she slipped away and managed to return to her home.

Lawrence police say they have a strong clue to the identity of the four men, and that they will press the case to the utmost. They are inclined to disbelieve some sections of the girl's story.

Miss Johnson identified the camp where she and her companion were attacked by the young men, and whence she fled leaving her young cousin screaming for aid.

State troopers of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, aided by local motorcycle police officers, have scoured the woods around Salem, N. H., and the shores of the lake in vain. Yesterday they chased a

U. S. TO SEEK $100,000,000 FROM WAR GRAFTERS

By WINDER R. HARRIS.
Universal Service Correspondent.

Washington, May 10.—President Harding has transmitted to Congress a report by Attorney General Daugherty announcing that wholesale prosecutions are ready to be started against war contractors guilty of defrauding the government out of millions of dollars.

The Daugherty report asserts that evidence of criminality has been disclosed in every one of a "large number" of "the more important cases" in which investigations have been completed or are rapidly nearing completion.

The "aggregate possible recoveries" in which civil suits will be instituted for recovery of unlawful payments to contractors, the Attorney-General further predicts "would probably equal $100,000,000."

SEE PLAN TO BLOCK PROBE.

President Harding transmitted the report through Representative Mondell, Republican leader, who had it read in the House. It brought a prompt reply from Representative Woodruff, Republican, of Michigan. Joint author with Representative Johnson, Republican, of South Dakota, of the pending resolution for a congressional investigation of war frauds and the alleged laxity of the Department of Justice to prosecute them.

Representative Garrett of Tennessee, acting Democratic leader, flatly charged that the purpose of the attorney general's report was to head off the investigation.

BLAMES WILSON REGIME.

Mr. Mondell's reply took the form of a sweeping assault on the Democratic administration's responsibility for the "thievery." It is now sought to punish.

COOLER TOMORROW IS BOSTON FORECAST

We're in for a cooler spell, according to Forecaster Smith. The official prediction is fair tonight and tomorrow, slightly cooler tomorrow. Forecaster Smith wouldn't be surprised if the temperature dropped into the lower fifties. It was fifty-four degrees at Eastport, Me., today, the coldest spot in New England.

TO RESIST NEW YORK WARRANT

Counsel Says Shipping King Is Not Likely at This Time to Give Self Up

Washington, May 10—Charles W. Morse, under indictment by a Federal Grand Jury in New York on charges of conspiracy to use the United States mails to promote a shipbuilding stock-selling fraud, is reported to have decided to fight extradition from Maine, where he resides.

Bench warrants have been issued in New York for the arrest of Morse and his three sons, who were indicted with him, because of their failure to appear in court and plead to the indictments.

Wilton Lambert, counsel for the Morses in the pending criminal proceedings, based on Grand Jury indictments returned in the District of Columbia, charging conspiracy to defraud the United States government in dealings with the United States Shipping Board, said today he had reason to believe the elder Morse would not appear in court to plead to the New York indictments "just yet."

"I rather think Mr. Morse will fight extradition from Maine," said Mr. Lambert. "I do not represent him in the New York cases, but I have been in communication with him and have reason to believe that he has made up his mind to resist removal from Maine."

Fletcher Dobyns, special Assistant United States Attorney-General, in charge of the Morse cases in the District of Columbia, and who assisted in the preparation of the New York indictments, said today:

"There is no disposition on the part of the Government to impose a hardship on Mr. Morse. The issuance of bench warrants followed as a matter of course after their failure to appear.

"Even now we do not wish to insist on the service of the bench warrants if he will arrange to enter plea and post bonds. It has not occurred to me that Mr. Morse will fight extradition."

Miss Culberson Is Captivated While Buying Gas

Austin, Tex., May 10.—Miss Mary Culberson met Alexander Robertson last Autumn when she drove her touring car up to the Austin Garage for gasoline. As the alleged British war hero pumped the gas into the car, his interesting line of talk appeared to fascinate the Southern girl.

It is said that after that the husky Britisher often drove up to the Alpha Phi Sorority House, where Miss Culberson lived, and carried girls out for a ride. The girls found him irresistible.

"Get all you can and go after the biggest thing," was his expressed philosophy of life.

"Your ideas are all right, Robertson, but leave the punctuation to me," one of the university professors told him here.

MISSES WIFE, DROPS DEAD AT WHARF

She was aboard the City of Belfast coming from Belfast, Me. The boat was due at 7:30 a. m. It came and docked, but Mr. Bowman missed his wife.

The last of the passengers were tripping out toward the street when Bowman with a last survey gave a gasp and fell dead.

Mrs. Bowman arrived home and found the house empty. She then phoned the steamship company.

"Is my husband there?" She asked, describing Bowman.

"Yes," was the answer.

Mrs. Bowman fainted when she learned her husband was dead.

The death of Mr. Bowman was believed to have been due to heart failure.

The medical examiner ordered the body removed to the morgue.

Mr. Bowman was forty-two years old.

DOCTOR SUICIDE BECAUSE LOVE CHOSE YOUTH

New York, May 10.—Can a psychoanalyst, schooled to the thinking of Freud and Stekel, with his way back into a woman's affections after he has been cast aside in favor of a younger man?

Dr. Alfred Riedel, noted eye specialist, who ended his life Monday at the Hotel Markwell, No. 220 West Forty-ninth street, after he had failed to revive the waning love of a Hippodrome ballet girl, could not do it.

He was a man of scientific mind, a keen psychoanalyst, a cunning judge of human nature, yet he could devise no method of regaining his place in the heart of a Hippodrome ballet girl who had spurned him. Therefore he chose to die by his own hand.

Such is the opinion of friends of the widely known physician who discussed with officials circumstances which led to his unhappy ending.

Dr. Riedel, his heart filled with these analytical thoughts, penned a farewell story which he called "The Last Sunday Eve—a Nocturne," gave it to a friend with the request that it be published, and then took his own life.

PREFERRED TO DIE.

Youth had to be served, by the doctor's philosophy, and death was to be preferred to life without the woman he had loved.

The novelette written by Dr. Riedel will be published as the physician wished it to be, that it might serve as a warning to others.

Dr. Riedel had seemingly tired of life as early as last February. One of his friends—the recipient of the novelette, in fact—said that the doctor had told him of his shattered romance and intimated that he would like to die.

The physician had apparently sensed the fact that his affair with the Hippodrome beauty was built on a shaky foundation. When he realized that his topheavy structure of love was in imminent danger of collapsing he sank into a fit of dejection from which he never rallied.

The case was not without its elements of poetic justice. Riedel had cast off his wife, a few years older than he, and sought the company of a more youthful woman. Then, in turn, he came to the point where he had seen himself similarly cast into the discard by the young woman on which he had chosen to lavish his affections.

MARRIED A NURSE.

The before-mentioned friend said that Riedel met his wife when she was employed as a nurse at the Williamsburg Hospital. He was an interne there, and a love developed that led to their marriage in 1907.

But the marriage was not a happy one, it is said, and a year or so ago the wife went to Pennsylvania to live with her parents.

SAMMY AND HIS PALS

MRS. STILLMAN READY TO GO ON STAND

To Deny Banker's Charges of Misconduct With Indian Guide Beauvais

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 10.—Mrs. Anne U. Stillman was prepared to take the stand in her own defence and that of her three-year-old son, Guy Stillman, today, at the final hearing in the divorce suit instituted against her by James A. Stillman.

All indications were that she would deny that she had misconducted herself with Fred Beauvais, Indian guide, alleged by the banker to be the father of little Guy.

Accompanied by her oldest son, James Stillman, and Fowler McCormick of Chicago, Mrs. Stillman motored to Poughkeepsie last night and conferred with John E. Mack, guardian ad litem for baby Guy.

STILLMAN IS MUM.

Mr. Stillman has testified on two occasions in the divorce action, but he refused to answer all questions concerning his relations with three women named by Mrs. Stillman on the ground "that it might tend to incriminate him."

James ("Bud") Stillman will testify today or tomorrow, it was said.

He left for New York today to meet his sister Anne upon her return today from Paris, where she has been attending a private school. It was reported the boy would try to induce his sister to take the stand in behalf of their mother.

Harriet Hibbard, who last week identified two love letters purported to have been written by Mrs. Stillman to Beauvais, was to be cross-examined. She was formerly an employe at the banker's country estate in the Pocantico hills.

NURSE IS WITNESS.

Miss Ida M. Oliver, who nursed baby Guy, also was on the list of witnesses for the closing chapter of the trial.

Accompanying the bankers' attorneys was a handwriting expert. His services were to be used, it was understood, in the event Mrs. Stillman denied authorship of letters received in evidence as having been sent by her to Beauvais.

Anne Stillman to Split Vacation With Parents

New York, May 10.—Miss Anne Stillman, returning today on the Olympic from school in Paris, was noncommittal on the question of whether she would take the stand for her mother, defendant in the divorce suit filed by James A. Stillman, New York banker.

Miss Stillman would only state that she planned to divide her Summer vacation equally between her parents.

PROBE OF COAL PRICES BEGUN

At the same time Boston dealers are preparing the public for an increase in price, on the ground that a shortage is close at hand.

PRICE MUST DROP.

Mr. Chadwick says:

"The price of coal will be lower. Coal has not dropped a cent at the mines, although the retail price has been reduced to some extent. Freight rates have not come down either and both must drop. They are materially out of line with other necessities.

"I have been urging people by word of mouth and through advertisements in local newspapers not to buy their Winter's coal now. I didn't know the big dealers were urging the public to buy. The dealers have not much coal on hand. If the public begins buying heavily it will create a shortage. At the present time there is not 5 per cent. of the supply for next year on hand in New England.

WOULD MEAN HARDSHIP.

"Not only would immediate buying force up the price, but it would work a hardship to many people. A great number do not know where they are going to be next Winter and for that reason cannot afford to lay in a supply of coal. Others have not the money and are forced to live from hand to mouth. There is no reason why they should be made to suffer."

Mr. Chadwick's advice coincided with recent statement issued by Eugene C. Hultman, State fuel administrator.

WAR GRAFTERS TO GO ON TRIAL

followed shortly after announcement of a call for a Republican conference Tuesday night, when it is understood the resolution of inquiry is to be one of the prime topics of discussion.

The Attorney-General's report promises sensational revelations of "influential personages" in the Wilson administration who "were personally interested in concealing" the fraudulent transactions which cost the government many millions.

ASKS MORE JUDGES.

Mr. Daugherty requests prompt action on his request, recently communicated to Congress by the President, for a special fund of $500,000 to be used in pushing the war fraud cases. He also urges quick action on pending bills providing for twenty-three additional judges in various districts over the country and creating an additional grand jury in the District of Columbia, where most of the cases will have to be instituted.

In the case of the Lincoln Motor Company, the only one specifically referred to, wherein Representatives Woodruff and Johnson had charged the Department of Justice with laxity in protecting the government, the Attorney-General says he delayed court action to grant a hearing requested by the receiver for the company, but after the hearing ordered proceedings renewed.

The report includes a letter from Federal Judge Tuttle, in whose court the Lincoln Motor case was filed, absolving Mr. Daugherty from any failure to protect the government's interests.

Summing up, the attorney general boldly proclaims that the record of the Department of Justice in war contract cases "calls for no apology and none is intended."

Bride of Five Months Had Lived for Weeks in Terror of What Might Happen

"Today it is lovely and sunshiny," wrote pretty Hortense Alice Fowler, twenty years old, five months a bride and in love with life.

It was her last letter to her mother in Brockton. She warned her mother to "be careful of Thomas," the family cat, and her favorite from her little girl days. She spoke of going out into the park to feed the pigeons and she warned her people not to worry about her.

A few hours later the girl wife was found dead in her apartment at No. 153 Hemenway street, stabbed to death by her fifty-two-year-old husband, Charles H. Fowler, an unsuccessful inventor.

For eight hours Fowler prowled about the death chamber, contemplating the work of his hands. Then he closed all the windows and doors, turned on the gas, lay down beside the body of his murdered wife and died.

WEEKS OF DREAD.

The murder was the climax to a series of rows between the April bride and the September bridegroom.

She had lived in fear and trembling for weeks, dreading she knew not what horrible end to her unusual romance.

Even in her last cheery letter to her mother she felt it necessary to include the parting injunction "not to worry."

The girl wife was murdered early yesterday morning. It was many hours later that John Moore, occupying the flat above, smelled the gas and went to investigate. Husband and wife, differing violently in life, were united in death. They lay, clad in night clothes, side by side on the bed.

The jealousy of the middle-aged husband over the attentions of former sweethearts to his youthful wife is supposed to have been the cause of the tragedy.

Aside from the "Don't worry" injunction, Mrs. Fowler's last letter to her mother had no hint of the approaching tragedy or her own feeling that tragedy was creeping upon her.

Here it is:

CHEERY LETTER.

"Dear Mum—I am fine, and hope you and dad and Mary are the same. The rain stopped last night and today it is lovely and sunshiny.

"I will be home Monday if everything goes all right. If not, I'll call you up. I am going to have lobster for dinner, with cucumbers and tomatoes and cake and tea. I guess I'll go out in the park this afternoon to feed the pigeons and squirrels. They are awful cute.

"They roost in an airshaft. Every morning they sing so loud they wake us up. I hope it stays nice for the rest of the week now.

"Love from Hortense."

IN FAMOUS CASE.

The ill-assorted pair were married December 10 of last year. She was the daughter of Mrs. William Trembly of Brockton and had "worked around" as a waitress while waiting for the right man to come along and claim her.

Fowler had been a bartender, and had an innocent but exciting part in the famous Rosenthal murder drama in New York years ago, but for years he had raised himself an inventor and had patented auto devices, a pie plate and other things.

He gave her his protection and his name to prevent her mother's prosecuting her as a stubborn child, according to close friends. At any rate they quarrelled from the day Hortense Trembly became Hortense Fowler.

He borrowed heavily, to pay his debts. He served notice through a Brockton paper that he would not pay her debts. He left her, and went back. It was her refusal to stop seeing ex-sweethearts of her own age that drove Fowler to murder and suicide.

WROTE TO DAUGHTER.

He told his brother Vincent "he couldn't stand it any longer." They were quarreling noisily yesterday, but the landlady, Mrs. Waldo S. Palmer, paid no attention to them. She is a wise lady and has been in the lodging-house business too long to interfere between husband and wife.

MURDER VICTIM AND SUICIDE IN BACK BAY

Weird noises in Back Bay home terrified girl-wife for week

MRS. HORTENSE ALICE FOWLER

Twenty-year-old bride of five months who was slain by her husband whose relatives say tragedy followed her refusal to give up the attentions of her former admirers.

CHARLES H. FOWLER

Fifty-two-year-old inventor, who stabbed his wife to death and killed himself eight hours later in their Back Bay apartment.

Fowler Unwittingly Sent Rosenthal to His Death

Before he became an inventor, Charles Fowler, who shot and killed his young wife and himself in the Back Bay yesterday, was a bartender in the Hotel Metropole, New York. There he was friendly with "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Dago Frank," and other notorious gangsters.

One night "Gyp the Blood" entered and told him to ask Herman Rosenthal, the famous gambler, to "step outside and see a friend." Fowler delivered the message. Rosenthal went out to the sidewalk and was shot to death by the gangsters.

Fowler was spirited out of the city afterwards. His part in the famous tragedy was never made public until today.

OFFICER QUITS AFTER ROW IN RESTAURANT

Charges of "drinking liquor from a bottle while in uniform" were to have been preferred against him.

Frazer, who had been on the force for a year, was attached to the Back Bay station. He is married.

He was taken out of the restaurant by brother officers and walked to the East Dedham street station, but no charge of drunkenness was preferred against him. According to Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, he was "nearly sober" when he reached the station.

The name of the restaurant was not made public by the police, but it is understood the proprietor charges the "disturbance" promoted by the policeman consisted of hurling salt shakers, coffee cups and other aids to eating at the heads of restaurant attendants.

Frazer was not on duty when he started trouble in the restaurant.

ALLEGED VICTIM OF GETTIGAN IS DYING

Clinton W. Richardson, whom J. Thomas Gettigan of Crest avenue, Revere, is accused of hiring someone to kill, is dying in Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Today when Gettigan's trial for the murder of an aunt and attempt to have Mr. Richardson assassinated, to inherit their joint fortunes of $200,000, was called, it was postponed until May 22.

Mr. Richardson, 59 years old, of No. 53 Beachland avenue, Revere, is a wealthy real estate operator. His wife, a principal witness against Gettigan, refuses to leave his bedside. It was her absence that caused the trial's postponement.

Gettigan is accused of hiring two men to kill Richardson.

He was indicted last Fall. There followed an investigation which caused the exhuming of the body of Mrs. Lizzie M. Cook, who had lived with Gettigan.

An autopsy resulted in Gettigan being charged with his aunt's murder. Officials said a quantity of arsenic had been given the woman.

Arraigned on a charge of murder in February, Gettigan pleaded not guilty. He has since been confined in Charles street jail.

Two men charged him with offering them money to slay his uncle, Richardson, through whose death he would have inherited a fortune estimated at $200,000.

TRAIL 'CAVE MAN' TO JERSEY

New York, May 10.—The "cave man" believed to have lured Lillian White, an inmate of the Letchworth Village Home, to his mountain haunt where she was slain, will soon be captured, Rockland County authorities believe. They said he had been found in New Jersey. A warrant charging murder will be issued.

Since Lillian White's skeleton was found in the mountains, the alleged slayer has been twenty-four hours ahead of his pursuers. His trail has been hard to follow, as it lead over rough roads and through little traveled byways.

Few criminals in fiction or reality ever covered up their tracks as well as he. It was not until her skeleton was found that investigators began to put together clews that pointed to the subject.

Lillian, according to the official theory, was lured from the home after she had threatened criminal prosecution against the suspect on the grounds that he had betrayed her. She went to his cave, where she was slain with a stone.

ABDUCTED GIRLS FLEE FROM AUTO CAPTORS

ONE OF KIDNAPERS' VICTIMS

Miss Lillian Johnson, who made a desperate and successful break for liberty after she and her cousin, Marion Erlander, had been abducted by four autoists in the streets of Lawrence. Miss Erlander, whom she left behind struggling in the hands of her captors, also finally escaped and has returned to her home in Lawrence.

SOCIETY GIRL JILTS FIANCE, WEDS COUNT

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.

New York, May 10.—Charlotte Gardner Demarest was secretly married yesterday to Count Edward Zichy De Zich Et Vasonykeo.

This bit of news will come as a distinct surprise, not only to society but to the bride's mother, Mrs. Warren G. Demarest of No. 145 East Forty-ninth street, and to young George Burton, who had planned to marry Miss Demarest today.

ON EVE OF WEDDING.

Only a week or so has elapsed since Mrs. Demarest formally announced her youngest daughter's betrothal to Mr. Burton, a son, by a former marriage, of Mrs. Frederick Housman of No. 755 Park avenue.

Nothing quite as sensational as Miss Demarest's jilting of young Burton on the eve of his wedding day, and eloping with the handsome scion of the ancient house of Zichy has happened in New York's smart set in many years and the chosen few, in on the secret are flabbergasted.

PHOTOGRAPHED IN GOWN.

Plans were completed for the wedding of the Demarest heiress and Mr. Burton, in fact photographs of the bride, arrayed in ancestral lace, were ready for publication. The gown, a glorious creation of white satin and orange blossoms, will never be used as a bridal gown.

When Miss Demarest accompanied Count Zichy to the municipal building the couple were met by the count's chum, Christian P. C. Elliot, who served as best man. The bride was unattended, and a trifle nervous, due to the fact that the stern city officials insisted she produce proof of her age before they would consent to the knot being tied, First Deputy Clerk McCormick performed the ceremony.

Today's bride, it will be recalled, is a sister of Lady Alastair Leveson-Gower, who was at one time the wife of "Jack" Leidman, Jr., whose sister married the Duke of Croy.

MET TWO YEARS AGO.

Mrs. Demarest and her daughters have been to the fore in the metropolitan smart set for years. Charlotte first met Count Zichy, who is twenty-seven, two years ago at Southampton, where Mrs. Demarest is a leader of the Summer colony.

Count Zichy De Zich et Vasonykeo, who is known as "Count Zichy," has many relatives in this city. His parents, the Count and Countess Bela R. Zichy, make their home in Enyiede, Czecho-Slovakia, and are leaders in the exalted set in which the Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, is a prime factor when one is above.

30,000 DECLARE BUSINESS GOOD

New York, May 10.—Business and trade conditions throughout the United States, as reported by 20,000 manufacturers to John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers here today, show a "stable, sane, definite and continuing advance."

"We have not only turned the corner," was Mr. Edgerton's summary. "We are now leaving it very far behind. Business is on the upgrade in practically all the basic industries."

The survey was made by questionnaires, answers to which were received within the last twenty-four hours, so that, as Mr. Edgerton pointed out, it represents conditions as of today.

"In the replies there is an absolute lack of an expression of pessimism," he says. "A year ago we were not so fortunately situated. Many of our industries were still suffering greatly from the war effects, some of them thought perhaps they would never be able to get back to normal.

"In the steel industries today the survey shows conditions classed as excellent among 6 per cent. of our membership; 25 per cent. as good, 52 per cent. as fair and 17 per cent. as poor.

"In the textile industry 70 per cent. of them report conditions running from fair to excellent and 30 per cent. report poor conditions.

"In three industries where retrenchment is ordinarily acutely felt —automobiles, jewelry and leather—the showing is not by any means gloomy, although not so good as in other lines. From the auto trades good reports are 76 per cent.; in jewelry 50 per cent. and in leather 50 per cent.

"All of these businesses, from steel to jewelry, report prospects for high per centages of increase between now and Fall."

speeding auto containing three young men and a girl through Andover. The car got away, but not before the pursuers had recognized one of the youths.

SIGNS OF WILD ORGIES.

Search of the camp identified by the Johnson girl as that where the girls were taken gave the police no clews. Although there were women's combs in profusion, bits of lingerie and ribbon, and other articles of women's apparel, none could be identified as belonging to the missing girl.

"Marion and I went to the movies at the Strand Theatre," said Lillian Johnson, telling her complete story. "After the show we walked up and down Essex street a couple of times. Marion had a date to meet Henry Coyne, her sweetheart. On Broadway and Haverhill street a young man in an automobile hailed Marion. She cried: "Hello, Jimmie," and went over and spoke to him. There were three other men in the car. They were all young and wore dark clothing, blue suits I think. Marion seemed to know Jimmie, as she called him. His was the only name I heard mentioned. They invited us to go for a ride.

"We got into the car and they headed it toward Cansbie Lake. As we passed Milk street, I heard one of the men say it was quarter to 10. During the ride they simply asked us where we worked, where we lived and such questions.

HEARD MARION'S SCREAMS.

"They stopped the car in front of the camp I have pointed out. One of them got out. I don't know how I got into the camp, but he opened the front door and we went in—at least we two girls and two of the men did. One of the men had lighted a lamp. I sat on a chair near the door leading to the kitchen. Marion sat on the couch with the other fellow.

"I heard one of the men say that the fellow who owned the camp had been up there Sunday afternoon. One of the men put out the lamp. Then one of them tried to kiss me. We struggled, and I fell off the chair. We rolled over on the floor. I got to my feet and asked for a glass of water. The man went out the back door to get it. I followed him and ran away.

"As I left I heard Marion scream: 'Oh, Mama! Don't! Help me, Lillian!'

"She called my name again, but I figured it was no use for me to go back. I went down the road, and then crept back. I hid behind a tree and saw the men and Marion come out and get into the automobile. They drove away at top speed.

RUSSIANS AMEND REPLY TO ALLIES

By Associated Press.

Genoa, May 10.—The Russian reply to the allied memorandum, which was ready for presentation this forenoon, was not delivered to the allies, as expected, as at the last moment, after a conversation between Foreign Ministers Tchitcherin of Russia and Schanzer of Italy, it was decided the reply would have to undergo some alteration.

TWO POLICEMEN KILLED; CHICAGO LABOR BLAMED

Chicago, May 10.—Two policemen were shot and killed, another wounded and two buildings bombed today in disorders police attributed to labor warfare. The shootings were followed by a running pistol fight in which the killers eluded police.

Chief of Police Fitzmorris ordered every policeman on duty and directed that all labor leaders be brought in.

"I have ordered detention of everyone who may have any information of the Landis wage award, a decision handed down by K. M. Landis, former Federal judge, acting as arbiter in a long-drawn-out dispute between members of the Building Trades Council and contractors.

The buildings bombed were the garage of Tyler & Hippach and the Hanneberry printing plant.

The dead are: Terrance Lyons, acting lieutenant, and Patrolman Thomas Clarke. Clarke, who was guarding a building previously bombed, was notified of the garage bombing, and a few minutes later a taxi driver notified police three men were fighting with Clarke. Officers found him fatally wounded.

Later Lieutenant Lyons, seeing a car speeding past a traffic signal, commanded it to halt. The occupants answered with a volley of shots which killed Lieutenant Lyons and wounded Patrolman Mosfiel.

O'BRIEN SEEKS FULL FACTS IN ROLLINS' CASES

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien said today he had started an investigation of stories to the effect that George and Charles Rollins are serving time in prison for murders they never committed.

His announcement came a few hours after Major Thomas Walsh applied at the State House for a new law which would make the granting of new trials to the Rollins boys easier.

District Attorney O'Brien said:

"As a result of numerous inquiries arising from recent press reports on the Rollins case I wish to say that because of claims made by a number of persons in Boston who aver that they have pertinent facts in their possession and furthermore an account of claims persistently made over a period of years by an inmate of a penitentiary in Pennsylvania, that he participated in the murders of which the Rollins boys were convicted, several weeks ago, I began a thorough investigation to determine the real facts.

"No expense or effort will be spared to this end."

Major Walsh, who is counsel for George Rollins, who is serving time for the slaying of Ordway Hall, A & P store manager, asked the Legislatures to do away with the time limit in the matter of retrial.

Jesse Murph an inmate of the Eastern Penitentiary in Pennsylvania, has confessed to the killing of Hall and exonerated Rollins.

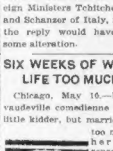
Chicago, May 10.—Lillian Shaw, vaudeville comedienne is some swift little kidder, but married life proved too much for even her professional sense of humor, she told Judge Sullivan.



Lillian Shaw.

"You see, your honor," she said, "I had six weeks of it. That's plenty and I'd like to get free once more. On February 5 last I married Jack Lait, friend of my dead stepsister, John Goldstein of San Francisco. On February 7 he beat it. Then he got the habit and kept right on beating me until I got tired of it. He did not seem able to get my point of view as we decided to part—at least I decided to part—company."

4 RUSSIANS JAILED IN REFORM MOVE

Moscow, May 10.—Prison sentences have been imposed upon four members of Russian revolutionary tribunals who executed death sentences on several persons without first referring the cases to the higher court. This is said by Soviet officials to be the first step in their campaign to make all provincial court authorities realize that the days of shooting persons without proper procedure are past.

The central government seeks to effect the new court reforms as speedily as possible, but finds it hard to break habits of those who have done as they pleased for five years.

COCHRAN WILL GIVE WALSKA $1,500,000

By Universal Service.

Paris, May 10.—That Ganna Walska will receive $1,500,000 in cash, a life insurance policy for $500,000, besides houses in Paris and New York from her multi-millionaire husband, Alexander Smith Cochran, is the report here.

The Walska-Cochran divorce bill will be submitted to the Court of Conciliation here early in June. The demanad for the divorce will be made by the singer, this point having been conceded after a lengthy conference between Attorneys Alvin Untermeyer and Dudley Field Malone, at which Walska assisted.

It is understood that Cochran has given Untermeyer's carte blanc to make all arrangements. All present plans, however, hinge on the diva's acceptance of the settlement terms, which it is understood she now opposes on the ground that they are too small.

Should Ganna Walska secure her divorce in June, it is understood that she intends to make her debut in the Paris Opera Comique in September, and that afterward she will go to America.

Under the law she will not be permitted to remarry until March, 1923.

THE English cut-work that has won for itself a definite place in the early Spring mode here smartens a daytime frock of gray cloth, worn over a slip of bright green silk. The sleeves of this frock are peculiarly notched over the forearm, and this is only one of the many little idiosyncrasies to which Paris has resorted in its pursuit of the decorative sleeve.

THE Summer afternoon frock is never more charming and, so far as this season is concerned, never smarter than when it is of organdie, in the charming new model at the left a skirt of rose and mauve and blue organdie, is topped by a bodice of the white organdie. The bodice is quaintly tucked around neckline, sleeves and girdle, and both tunic and skirt have plaited side sections, the former achieving a moderate bouffancy.

CURTIS' CHURCH OPENS FIGHT FOR PASTOR

A demurrer asking dismissal of the bill which members of the Boston Presbytery have filed against the First Presbyterian Church of Brookline, asking that the Rev. Edwin Curtis be prevented from occupying the pulpit there, has been filed in the Supreme Court by representatives of the church. It is claimed that the church has the right to regulate its own affairs, and that the case is not one which can be settled by a court of law.

The demurrer sets forth:

That it does not appear from the bill that the respondents or any of them hold any property of the church in trust for it.

That it appears that the acts the plaintiffs seek to enjoin are being done by virtue of a vote of a majority of the members of the respondent society, at a meeting duly called and held.

That it does not appear in the bill by what right the Presbytery of Boston assumes to direct or limit the use of control "of the property owned by the respondent society, or to direct or limit its use or control by the trustees.

Robertson will remain in Washington at the call of the embassy.

PELLETIER HAS RENEWED LAW OFFICE LEASE

Joseph C. Pelletier, just disbarred by order of the Supreme Court, and recently removed as district attorney for Suffolk County, has renewed the lease of his suite of law offices in Barristers' Hall, Pemberton square.

This was seen to mean that he planned to continue to act as adviser or counsellor to clients. Intimates pointed out that with his experience and wide acquaintance Mr. Pelletier could do a profitable business without going into court, such as drawing wills, contracts and other legal documents.

At present he is not discussing his plans. Mr. Pelletier has never dabbled in business other than law as has his friend, Daniel H. Coakley, who will devote his entire time to business in the future.

It is doubtful if any more of the lawyers named as co-conspirators with Messrs. Coakley and Pelletier will come up for disbarment before the petition for the disbarment of former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County is disposed of on June 5, to which date it was continued last week.

A rumor was in circulation last week that if Tufts' disbarment was continued he would fight, but these best posted officially predicted today that Tufts would follow the course of Messrs. Pelletier and Coakley insofar as the petition for his disbarment is concerned.

The matter of Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac's disbarment will come before the court after the Tufts disbarment has been attended to and it is understood the disbarments of Harry Levenson and former District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex County will follow automatically.

RANDOLPH REFUSES TO PAY CAR LINE $4,000

Randolph will not pay the $4,000 demanded by the South Braintree & Randolph Street Railway Company, according to a formal statement issued by Richard F. Forrest, chairman of the board of selectmen. The company says the money is due on a contract with the town officials a years ago in consideration of the continued operation of the railway lines. The company discontinued the local service Monday and has filed suit against the town. The case will come up next Monday in Supreme Court.

LIGHT SAVING LAW OPPOSED AS ARBITRARY

Have you an opinion on daylight-saving? If you haven't, you are the sole exception among 110,000,000 residents of the United States. If you have, get it on record by sending it to the Daylight-Saving Editor, Boston American, Boston.

Read below what several Boston American readers think. The subject has a general appeal. Most people are enthusiastically for or bitterly "ag'in" it. Let's hear from you.

Editor Boston American:

My principal objection to daylight saving is that the idea is not consistently carried out, particularly in these New England States.

I was in favor of daylight saving as a wartime measure. I am not sure I am against it as a peace time measure. But as a Federal law, not a State or municipal fad. To have two times in a country is as ridiculous as to have two systems of currency.

The thing reduces itself to absurdity in New England. One State has daylight saving. The next State to it has not. Even cities in the same State differ in time. New England hasn't the vast distances to permit of two kinds of time. The section is concentrated and closely knit. It can't stand it.

CRAZY-QUILT TIME.

The crazy-quilt pattern of New England time just now is good for joke-smiths and nobody else.

NEW ENGLANDER.

Editor Boston American:

Daylight saving," like many another arbitrary measure foisted upon helpless working people by the Chamber of Commerce, is designed for only one group of individuals.

These are the privileged men who leisurely proceed to their swivel chairs around 10 or 11 o'clock in the forenoon. The new schedule gives them an extra hour on the golf links or to indulge in some other of their favorite sports.

It is not the weary-eyed men and women one sees in the street cars at four or five or six o'clock in the morning, on their way to work, who had any voice in the matter of selecting their own hour for rising. Nor is it the much maligned and misunderstood farmer whose many hardships and difficulties are increased by the resultant confusion when railroad companies and other bodies are at odds on the matter of time.

FARMER, HANDICAPPED.

Also, the farmer's best hours are from four to five in the afternoon. He cannot gather his hay in the early morning nor after dark. By the new schedule his help quit at an hour when the opportunity for outdoor work is at its best.

SCRUBWOMAN.

Editor Boston American:

To those who toil all day and who crave time of their own in light of day to attend to pressing home affairs, such as painting, gardening and the like, the daylight saving plan is a blessing. It promotes early rising and early retiring at night, which is more important to the health of body and mind. It affords valuable opportunity to attend to domestic chores that might otherwise be half-done or neglected entirely.

The greatest folly and criticism is that the law is not national rather than sectional, as at present. Very sincerely,

U. S. RELIEF BOARD MAY STAY IN RUSSIA TILL JAN. 1

Moscow, May 10 (By the Associated Press).—If the Soviet government continues its present policy of co-operation, the American Relief Administration will remain in Russia until January 1, 1923, instead of leaving on September 1, next, as originally planned, Colonel William N. Haskell announced upon his return from Warsaw, where he conferred with Walter L. Brown, European director of the A. R. A.

The relief organization will feed the population in regions where the harvest is bad, he said. This would be possible within the original appropriation, he added, as some foodstuffs are available which were held up by the freezing of the Baltic Sea late in the Winter.

SALTONSTALL'S ILLNESS PUTS OFF WILSON TRIAL

PAL FLED WITH BOOTY, SAYS 'LONE WOLF'

Describing himself as "The Twentieth Century master thief," Neely Johnson, the "Lone Wolf," who has confessed to a score of burglaries in Boston, Cambridge and Brookline, told how he pulled off his jobs.

His kit consisted of a mask, gloves and gun. He wore rubber-soled shoes but disdained the use of jimmies and other house breaking implements.

"First I chose the house that I was going to rob," he told Chief Rutherford of the Brookline police. "Then I visited the grounds about the building and studied the part of the house where the best rooms were located. I looked to see if the windows were kept open at night. Next I would visit bu.ldings and lawns in the vicinity until I located a ladder that could be used to gain an entrance into the place I intended visiting.

"I would return at night with my assistant, J. James—the man you police are looking for now. I only carried a gun on a few occasions, and I never intended to use it. If I heard the slightest sound I would make my get away. I didn't want to take any chances."

Johnson said that he believed James was safely out of the State by this time with the bulk of the loot from the places the pair had robbed. This would amount to several thousand dollars, he declared.

Johnson was arraigned in Brookline court, and held in $4,500 bail. It is learned that a score of other charges are to be preferred against him.

Boy Draws Gun in Schoolroom and Shoots Pupil

Fall River, May 10.—While his teacher's back was turned to a classroom at the Lower Columbia Street School, Joseph Pires, ten years of age, exhibited a .22 calibre revolver to some classmates.

The revolver was accidentally discharged and the bullet struck the right arm of Anthino Raniseo, nine years old, seated a few aisles distant. Raniseo was rushed to a hospital where it was announced that his wound was not serious.

PRIESTS NAMED FOR MASS IN FENWAY PARK

Cardinal O'Connell has assigned the Right Rev. Joseph F. McGlinchey, diocesan director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, to be the celebrant of the open-air memorial mass to be celebrated in Fenway Park Sunday morning, May 28. The cardinal also has assigned the Rev. George P. O'Conor, assistant director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, to preach the sermon.

The memorial services are to be under the auspices of the American Legion, Veterans of the Spanish War and kindred military organizations. Thousands of veterans of the World War, Spanish War and the Civil War will participate in a parade through the streets of the Back Bay from Copley Square to the ball park.

Throngs from all over Greater Boston will attend the services. A beautifully carved altar is being prepared especially for the occasion, and will be placed in a part of the field where it may be conveniently seen from all parts of the ground and where the memorial services may be followed intimately.

Gay Colors—Fine Quality—Effective Patterns

These cretonnes cover a wide variety for decorative needs — linen effects, roller-prints, chintz patterns, gingham designs — in patterns varied enough to set off any room.

You won't see these patterns everywhere—each one is a type that you would pull out from a pile of average types because of its distinctive effect. The selection is almost unlimited as to colorings.

That are ordered now will be ready instead of wished-for when the hot days come!

Think for a minute of the work it entails to make a perfect-fitting, easy-adjusting, even-hanging awning. Now we can send a man to your home to measure and submit an estimate, wholly without cost to you, and promise delivery on porch shades or drop awnings within a short time.

If you wait until the first warmer days come, and that's what most folks do, we'll work just as hard to please you; but we can't give you quite as speedy service. The cost, of course, is the same. Won't you call Beach 3200, Upholstery Section, and have an expert come out now?

Flowers and Scenic Patterns Dominate the New Wall Paper Displays

The reaction against the monotony of all plain walls has come at last, and the decorative pendulum has swung to the other extreme now. Fine, gray landscape designs for halls and drawing rooms, flower designs in small and all-over patterns give a pleasant contrast to the plainness that has prevailed for so many years.

Our stock includes a large group of American manufacture, as well as imported rag-stock, glazed chintz and pictorial effects.

Main Street Scorns "Fallen Girls," but Mothers--Never!

The country church ostracizes her.

Her former girl friends are cold.

Even Dad—he doesn't always forgive.

But "Mother"—

"Mother," said the Rev. Alice Phillips Aldrich, Chicago's only woman pastor, who has assisted in the rescue of 10,385 "fallen" girls, "Mother is wonderful! She always understands.

"Dad somehow can forgive a prodigal son, but it's harder for him to reconcile a misstep on the part of a daughter," she added

DRUG ADDICTS DOUBLED AS COST DROPS

By WINIFRED BLACK

Washington, May 10.—Cheaper every month.

More of it every week.

Easier to get every day.

Opium, morphine, cocaine and heroin.

That's the government's information as to the narcotic drug situation in America right now.

And tons more at three or four foreign ports all waiting to be smuggled into us.

Pleasant news for the people of the United States, as well as for the government.

Almost as pleasant as the information in the statistics which show that this country uses over seven times as much narcotic drugs as any other country on the face of the globe.

"DOPE HABIT GROWS."

Not just seven times as much, either, but seven times as much in proportion to the population.

Statistics gathered by the Federal Government agree with those furnished by State and City authorities and they show that the "dope habit" is growing like a noxious weed all over the country.

There are over twice as many addicts today as there were a year ago.

Known victims these—known to the police and to the hospitals and to the druggists—known, you may be sure, to the drug ring and the "dope" peddlers. They have their own secret service, these people in the ring, and keep accurate account of their victims.

How many more are there not yet marked with the unmistakable brand of the drug slave?

Where do they all come from?

How are they enmeshed in the fatal net?

These questions are only too easily answered by anyone who has made even the slightest study of the situation.

MANY WOMEN VICTIMS.

The drug victims come from all classes—rich and poor, old and young, boys and girls—but the great majority of drug addicts are under twenty-five and six-sevenths of them are under twenty.

Writers, clerks, clubmen, doctors, lawyers, society women, debutantes, manicurists, girls in the shops and of course, almost every woman and girl in the night life of every great city.

When business gets dull, the big dealers get together and send a good looking, agreeable young fellow to the country towns.

He thinks of "buying a business there," hangs around the garage and the small town hotel, goes to prayer meeting and the ladies' aid suppers. Then he gives a little party, just an innocent little affair, and passes around just for fun a simple little white powder to be sniffed—just for the jazz.

Before he has left town he has two or three young fellows and probably a girl or two started on the "habit," and it is a well known motto of the "dope ring" that "every hop head is good for six more."

Good business for the "ring."

Some day the civilized nations of the earth will put a stop, not only to the manufacture of cocaine and heroin, but to the planting and raising of the cocoa plant itself.

Opium and morphine in small quantities we must have for medical use, by the ounce perhaps, not by the pound and by the ton.

The new bill which the House passed the other day is a straight-from-the-shoulder blow at the very heart of the "drug ring" in this country.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Plant Sale to Attract Large Smart Set Contingent

By BETTY ALDEN

MRS. WALTER C. BAYLIES is opening her house at No. 5 Commonwealth avenue, tomorrow afternoon, for an exhibition and sale of perennial plants.

A large contingent of society folk, whose love for beautiful gardens is no secret, will turn out for the affair, at which a group of prominent matrons are to serve as "salesladies." The sale is being arranged through various members of the Farm and Garden Association—which claims the interest of numerous society folk—and among those actively engaged in promoting tomorrow's sale are Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, Mrs. Robert B. Osgood, Mrs. Charles F. Richardson, Miss Baylies and Miss Marian R. Cass.

I recall that several successful affairs have been staged during the past season under the auspices of the Farm and Garden Association, all of which received the hearty sponsorship of prominent smart set matrons.

MRS. ERNEST ARMORY Codman of Beacon street will be among those receiving at a tea being given this afternoon at the Central House, No. 561 Massachusetts Avenue, by the board of managers of the Instructive District Nursing Association to the local committees. As president of the Association, Mrs. Codman has devoted no end of time to fulfilling the many duties imposed upon her by her office. Receiving with her at the tea today will be Miss Gertrude W. Peabody, vice-president and chairman of the Greater Boston committee.

There are no less than 13 of these committees, one in every district where the nurses work, except in the North and West Ends, each committee numbering from 10 to 30.

TO many of Boston's socially elect, the late Henry P. Davison of New York was more or less of a familiar figure, and those who knew him heard with deep regret of his sudden death a few days ago.

The funeral, which was a very simple one, was held yesterday morning at the Church of St. John of Lattingtown, a small Episcopal Church near the Davison estate at Locust Valley, L. I. According to a request uttered by Mr. Davison shortly before he passed away, the members of his family refrained from wearing mourning at the funeral.

The customary funeral service of the Episcopal Church was conducted by the Rev. Charles W. Hinton and the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton. The Rev. Mr. Peabody is the father-in-law of F. Trubee Davison, eldest son of the late financier. It was two years ago last month that young Davison, a Yale '18 man, claimed as his bride Miss Dorothy Peabody, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Peabody. I believe that a few months ago the young people received congratulations upon the birth of a son.

The wedding was solemnized in the chapel of Groton School, the service being performed by the bride's father, who was assisted by Rev. Charles W. Hinton of Locust Valley, with whom he conducted the funeral services for the late Mr. Davison yesterday.

It was at Groton School that F. Trubee Davison received his preparatory schooling. He did not complete his course at Yale, but left in 1917 before the United States entered the war, and organized the first Naval Aviation unit.

HARDLY has one Boston-New York alliance taken place, than right away comes the news of another betrothal tending to bind the smart sets of Gotham and the Hub yet more closely.

There is considerable interest in the recently announced engagement of Miss Geraldine Gray, daughter of the Gerald Hull Grays of Beacon street, and Robert T. Livingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Livingston (Mable Wright) of New York.

The wedding is to take place in October, but before this event the bride-to-be will sail for a trip abroad with her mother. At present Miss Gray is with her parents at their Summer home in Barnstable, on the Cape.

Colonel and Mrs. William Gaston of Bay State road, who sailed for abroad on April 16, have arrived in Paris. They went over to rejoin their daughter, Miss Hope Gaston, with whom they will return on June 15.

Miss Grafton Minot of Pride's Crossing and Washington was among the prominent guests attending the luncheon given this week at the Shoreham by General John J. Pershing in honor of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks. The luncheon was the third of a series which General Pershing is giving in honor of well-known personages in the official and social life at the capital.

Mrs. Horace Gray (Katharine Meeker) of The Fenway has arrived from Paris and is now stopping for a few days in New York at the Schuyler. Another Bostonian at present in New York is Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, who is registered at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton.

A vanguard of servants has already arrived at "Mirlmar," the magnificent Newport Summer estate of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, who are due at little Rhody's famous resort very shortly.

POLICE START INQUIRY INTO "STRAW BAIL"

Police Inspector Henry M. Pierce today began an investigation into the practice of professional bondsmen in the Municipal Court in putting up worthless sureties as bail for thieves, who are allowed to escape trial.

The practice is said to be twenty years old. But until District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien announced recently a cleanup in all courts, lower and higher, it has been allowed to go unnoticed.

Police Inspector Pierce's activities today came as a result of the district attorney's investigation, started last week. Inspector Pierce will examine all bail bonds offered before they are accepted and also probe into bonds put up in the past. Much worthless bail is said to be held in Municipal Court today on cases going to higher courts on appeal.

Such bail is known as "straw bail." A dozen professional bondsmen are said by police to have "gotten away with murder" in this respect for years.

KING GEORGE HONORS MISS CAVELL'S COURAGE

Brussels, May 10 (By the Associated Press).—The heroism and self-sacrifice of Edith Cavell were extolled today by King George of Great Britain, who, with Queen Mary, is here for a state visit to King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians. The British King laid a wreath of entwined Belgian, French and British flags upon the spot where the nurse, a large number of Frenchmen and three Belgians were executed by the Germans. King George said Miss Cavell left the world an imperishable legacy of courage and devotion which had a counterpart only in the martyrdom of Joan of Arc.

KILLS SELF AND HER THREE DAUGHTERS

Atlantic City, N. J., May 10.—Mrs. Edith Miller Busby, wife of William Busby, vice-president of the Keystone Lubricating Company, Philadelphia, and her three daughters, today were found dead from illuminating gas in Mrs. Busby's home at Ventnor, near here.

The police say notes found in the house indicate Mrs. Busby planned the death of herself and daughters.

She is said to have been separated from her husband three years.

The daughters were Constance, eleven; Edwinnia, nine, and Mary, six.

This extract from the Rubaiyat was found at the end of the note which Mrs. Busby had left for her husband to read:

"What if the soul could cast the earth aside,
And naked on the air of heaven ride?
Were't not a shame, were't not a shame indeed,
In this clay carcass longer to abide?"

PUBLIC HEARING ON 'GAS' TANK NEXT WEEK

Following the action of the City Council in refusing a permit to the Charlestown Storage and Warehouse Company to store 2,000,000 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil at Nos. 53-55 Beach street, Charlestown, the Street Commission has announced that a public hearing on the matter will be held next week.

A petition for the issuance of the permit, filed by Edward F. Wallace, is now before the Street Commission. Mayor Curley is strongly in favor of granting the permit and the opposition before the City Council brought out some sharp words of criticism against the mayor and the stand he is taking in the matter.

MAYOR'S VETO READY.

The mayor said he would veto the Council's action in refusing the permit.

Charges that Charlestown was being made a dumping ground and oil city were made by former Senator James H. Brennan, who conducted the case for the protestants. The petition has already met with the approval of Acting Fire Commissioner William J. Casey.

The plot of land where it is proposed to store the gasoline and oil is 709 feet long and 425 feet wide and runs from the Boston & Maine Railroad to the Mystic River.

A SERIOUS MENACE.

Insurance experts represented by Edward A. Barrier of the Factory Mutual Fire Insurance Company said that if the gasoline storage plant were erected in Charlestown, it would be a serious menace. George A. Schrafft, candy manufacturer, said that if the permit was approved he would have to move and give up the site he had selected for a candy factory. This represented from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 and the plant would employ 3,000 persons.

Mayor Curley and Mr. Brennan each accused the other of having ulterior motives in taking the stand they did as regards the granting of the permit.

Somerville Wife Who Accuses Husband of Cruelty

MRS. EVELYN PHILBRICK

GIRL WIFE SAYS EX SWEETHEART WRECKED HOME

Mrs. Evelyn Philbrick of Somerville, sixteen-year-old child wife of James F. Philbrick, Broadway, Revere, today filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty and unfaithfulness.

Mr. Philbrick, a gymnast, a few weeks ago asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. His wife, who weighs but a hundred pounds, in narrating her story of crushed romance says:

"Jim and I were married in 1919, when I was only fourteen. A short time later my husband began to pay attention to a former sweetheart. She came to visit us. She wished to stay over night. There were but two bedrooms, so Jim's mother said the girl should share our room.

"She came just before Christmas, 1920, and had her suit case with her. She stayed until New Year's and caused a bitter fight between Jim and me. This woman is now a choir singer. Often she came. Often I protested, but in no avail, for in the end she wrecked my home."

AGREE ON MONEY FOR ARMS PARLEY BOARDS

Washington, May 10.—Provision for American representation on two international commissions created at the arms conference is made under an agreement reported today between Senate and House conferees on the appropriation bill for the State and Justice departments.

House conferees accepted Senate amendments appropriating funds for American delegates to the commissions to consider revision of the Chinese tariff and to study the Chinese judicial system, including gradual abolishment of extra territorial rights. Another Senate amendment accepted by the House conferees appropriates $20,000 for the allied debt-funding commission.

"Handsomest Man in Movie World," Who Is to Marry

RUDOLPH VALENTINO

VALENTINO TO WED MOVIE ART DIRECTOR

Rudolph Valentino, handsomest man in moviedom, star of "The Sheik" and a dozen other popular pictures, is to be married.

Which means sorrow for countless feminine movie fans, but men will do it.

The lucky lady is known to the Hollywood screen colony as Natacha Rambova, art director for Nazimova. But she just took that name to be in character as one of the followers of the Russian actress. Her own name is Winifred Hudnut, and she is the daughter of Richard Hudnut, the New York perfumer.

Valentino, whose mysterious eyes fascinated so many female hearts when he played in "The Sheik" and "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," met Miss Hudnut when he was taking the part of Armand in Nazimova's "Camille."

His father-in-law-to-be is making the old saw about the troubles of true love look foolish by welcoming the handsome movie star to his family circle. He has met Valentino and likes him.

Valentino is under thirty, a native of Genoa, Italy, and a graduate of the Royal Military College of his native city.

He came to America when he was eighteen years old, intending to go out west and become a farmer.

But while he was waiting around the big cities he started dancing, professionally. One of his partners was Bonnie Glass, in private life Helen Roche of Roxbury. He was very successful as a dancer and he forgot his dream of a ranch in the Far West. From the cabaret to the "hot" was but a step and his appearance and his art made him a favorite almost immediately.

He was the "Sheik" in "The Sheik," "Julio" in "The Four Horsemen," and acted in "The Big Little Person" and "The Delicious Little Devil."

SUES MAN WHO ACCUSED HER OF POISONING

Bangor, Me., May 10.—Mrs. Bessie M. Day, who was arrested weeks ago on complaint of Charles H. Hamm, an eighteen-year-old boarder who accused her of feeding him poisoned jelly, has countered by having him arrested on a civil complaint.

She is suing Mr. Hamm for $2,000 for the damage to her reputation. He has been unable to furnish bail.

In 1915 he was in a hospital for the criminal insane for the killing of Mrs. George Whittemore of Bradford. He told his jury that the Lord directed him to kill the woman.

When he made the claim that jelly intended for him was poisoned by Mrs. Day.

The Grand Jury, after hearing all the evidence, refused to bring in an indictment against Mrs. Day.

Has the cost of living ceased to go down?

* * *

Last Fall the following forecast was made in this column: "My guess is that next year the cost of living will get down to from one-quarter to one-third above the pre-war basis."

Bradstreet's compilation showing the wholesale prices of ninety-six articles of common consumption, as dependable a record as any published, shows that prices at the opening of this month were 27 per cent above the pre-war, or 1913 level.

* * *

The high peak was reached on February 1, 1920. The maximum advance then shown was fully 126 per cent.

The low point since then was touched on June 1 of last year, the advance over 1913 being then only slightly more than 15 per cent.

Since then there has been an irregular advance, amounting in all to 12 per cent.

After declining during March, there was quite an appreciable recovery last month, about 1½ per cent.

* * *

Let us examine which classes of commodities and merchandise have advanced most and which have advanced least since pre-war days.

Taking the 1913 average as 100, the different groups now stand at the following average prices:

Breadstuffs	131
Livestock	106
Provisions	131
Fruits	150
Hides and leather	101
Textiles	132
Metals	84
Coal and coke	193
Oils	138
Naval stores	182
Building materials	160
Chemicals and drugs	174
Miscellaneous	149

What do these figures suggest?

Do they not suggest that certain things are sure to advance and that others are sure to decline?

For example, metals are little likely to remain cheaper than they were before the war. Nor are cattle and pigs and sheep likely to continue only a trifle above pre-war levels so long as the majority of the goods the farmers have to buy remain so much dearer than they used to be. Hides and leather are also likely to move up at least a little.

On the other hand, there is tremendous room for a fall in the price of coal. It has no business to be costing us almost twice what it cost before the war as the wages of most of us are nothing like twice what they were then. There would appear to be plenty of room for lowering prices of building materials, drugs and chemicals, fruits, and miscellaneous products.

* * *

What is likely to be the net consequence of these probable changes? Will it cost us more or less to live in future?

Talk to the average working man about the cost of living and he is almost certain to single out two things for special complaint, namely rents and coal.

Now, the indications all are that these two burdensome items will be lowered before very long.

* * *

More building is going on in America today than at any previous time in history, and as money for building purposes is likely to continue available in large amounts, the probability is that there will be more houses than tenants by and by. This will inevitably bring down rents, particularly in the cities where rent profiteering has been absolutely scandalous in many, many cases.

* * *

As for coal, either it will be made more reasonable in price or the public will demand drastic governmental action to take control of the whole situation out of the hands of those responsible for the present lamentably unsatisfactory state of affairs. There is no reason, apart from gross mismanagement and the shortsighted greed of those running the industry, why coal should have advanced more than any other commodity or material in the country. The coal operators may as well make up their minds that the public will not submit forever to iniquitously high prices brought about by failure to pilot the industry with reasonable intelligence and foresight.

* * *

In my opinion, the moderate advances which we must expect in certain classes of products will be pretty well offset by reductions in other products which are now too dear.

Then rents should decline enough to make the average cost of living somewhat less six or twelve months from now than it is today.

* * *

Meanwhile, I do not believe that the wage level will go materially lower. There will be cuts here and there, without a doubt, but these should be partly offset by modest advances where the wage rate was cut too drastically during the period of acute depression.

* * *

My conclusion is that the rank and file of our population will enjoy somewhat better living conditions next year, provided all classes work industriously and live prudently.

OILS LED LIST TO HIGHER LEVEL

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but little below the best level of the morning. The market had shown a good tone at the opening and the morning movement was upward. The highest prices were reached around mid-morning. Profit taking in the second hour caused some issues to ease off. Oils led the advance, while steels were also prominent for strength. Rails and equipments had good support, but were quiet. Less was done with specialties than usual. The crop report, Genoa news and higher gasoline quotations all contributed aid to the bulls. There was more covering than short selling.

The market, in fact, displayed more strength during the forenoon than most brokers had forecast in suggestions to clients. Trading was of much less volume than for some time, morning transactions aggregating about 350,000 shares. Call money opened at 4 per cent. Foreign exchange rates advanced on expectation that something will be accomplished at the Genoa Conference.

April Bond Sales An 18-Year Record

By MONROE ROBERTS.

Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service

New York, May 10.—A reflection of the increasing public interest in the bond market and consequently of a larger turnover both in the listed and unlisted market is to be seen in the published statement of bond sales in the New York stock exchange for April.

The sales last month were the largest for any similar period since November, 1904, and the second largest in the history of the stock exchange. The aggregate of bond sales on the New York stock exchange since the first of the year was $1,728,890,250 compared to $1,070,858,350 for the same period last year; $1,404,849,030 in 1920; $1,194,534,735 in 1919 and $518,613,000 in 1918.

Though there has been a large absorption of foreign government and corporate securities in our markets this year, the outstanding feature has been the increasing activity in domestic corporation bonds, some of which have been issued for the purpose of refunding issues already in the market and some for expansion of plants and factories.

In April, 1922, bond transactions of the New York exchange totaled $446,923,000, compared with $418,491,000 in March and $227,712,000 in April, 1921.

COPPERS HAVE A FIRMER TONE

The price movement on the Boston exchange was narrow at the opening, about half of the issues to come out being unchanged. Trading was quiet and confined to a comparatively few stocks. Coppers had a better tone, reflecting to some extent the advances in the quotation for red metal. There was little alteration in rails and packing issues. The market had no outstanding features. It was stronger at noon than at the start, although the improvement was not pronounced.

Island Creek advanced 1⅛ to 111½ and U. S. Smelting 1 to 46. Issues to sag one point were Boston & Maine preferred, Atlantic Gulf, United Fruit, St. Mary's Land and Hood Rubber.

CURB SHOWS STRENGTH.

While trading was quiet on the Curb that market showed strength. Leaders were Crystal, Eureka and Verde Mines. Gains at noon included Mutual 1 cent at 32 cents, Ruby 1 cent at 27 cents, Three Metals 2 cents at 72 cents, Shea Copper 5 cents at 65 cents, Boston Ely 1 cent at 94 cents, Chief 1-16 at 4 5-16 and Radio common ⅛ at 5⅛. Among losses were Eureka 1 cent at 24 cents, Verde Mines 3 cents at 31 cents, Seven Metals 1 cent at 3 cents and Crystal ⅛ at 1⅛.

Boston and Maine Railroad

To the Stockholders of the Boston and Maine Railroad:

Many individual Stockholders have inquired of individual Directors what the present plan is for voting the proxies held by the Committee appointed by the Board.

It was stated at the Annual Meeting on the 12th ult. that it was expected before the contest for proxies arose that the proxies, which were received in accordance with the usual custom by a Committee authorized by the Board of Directors, would be voted for substantially the present members of that Board, filling one vacancy and possibly making one or two changes.

The Board of Directors considers that the proxies sent to this Committee are to be voted for substantially the present membership of the Board. There is one vacancy occasioned by the death of one of the Federal Trustees. The Committee would, in the ordinary course of events, cast their vote for the nominee of the Federal Trustees to fill this vacancy. In order to comply with the laws of the State of Vermont in case of the merger of some of the Vermont roads into the Boston and Maine Railroad, it is necessary to have another Director in Vermont and Mr. William D. Woolson of Springfield, Vt., has consented to have his name submitted to the meeting. It is the intention of the Committee of Directors to cast their proxies in his favor to fill the place of Mr. William J. Hobbs of the present Board who will retire in favor of Mr. Woolson. The only matter undetermined, therefore, in the minds of the Directors and their Committee is the name of the Director for whom they will vote to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Federal Trustee. Aside from this, with the single substitution of Mr. Woolson for Mr. Hobbs, they will vote for the present Board.

By order of the Directors
J. H. HUSTIS, President

NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

The Boston American every day publishes an up-to-the-minute review of industrial conditions throughout New England.

This will be found on the Financial page. Watch for it. Very latest news of labor and capital received from the Boston American's special correspondents and investigators.

The campaign of the New England shoe manufacturers to lower wages is under way at last.

The trustees of the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association are at work making out a schedule, the central idea of which is "readjustment." Which is another and more pleasant way of saying "reductions." There will be other meetings this week for the same purpose. The Haverhill men say that with the manufacturers in Lynn and Rochester apparently about to get substantial concessions from the workers, they cannot continue to operate under the present wage scale.

Coincident with the move of the Haverhill manufacturers the union chiefs began to campaign against open shops and to cement their existing organization.

In Brockton the unemployment situation is acute. In nine cases out of ten the unemployed there are shoe workers.

Fall River reported sudden activity in the cotton market following the sharp rise in cotton prices.

Haverhill Shoe Firms Will Readjust Prices

Haverhill, May 10.—The trustees of the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association met and started the work of making out a schedule of readjustment of prices in the local shoe industry, in an endeavor to establish lower labor costs. Several meetings are scheduled for this purpose this week.

Brockton Relief Workers Aid Families of Jobless

Brockton, May 10.—The unemployment problem in Brockton is so acute at the present time that the Family Welfare Association, an organization formed to meet just such an emergency, is working day and night to bring relief to needy families.

Brockton is to start soon on the extension of Centre street, from Main to Warren avenue. The project is to cost more than $400,000. Scores of buildings are to be torn down to make way for the new street.

Fall River Manufacturers Taking All Cotton in Sight

Fall River, May 10.—The sharp upturn in prices, coming as it did in the cotton market without a warning, has caught the manufacturers of this city unawares and since it was realized that a general rise was really under way there has been more or less scramble in some quarters to secure all odd lots available still at the old prices.

Lowell Plant Reopens With 600 Operatives

Lowell, May 10.—Six hundred operatives are at work in the Hamilton Cotton Mills, which opened, following an idleness of thirteen weeks. Strikers made the announcement that all operatives reporting for work would lose their union standing forthwith.

The Hamilton ordinarily employs about 2,000. Those who return to work do so at a cut of 20 per cent. in wages. The Bay State Cotton Mills are running with half their force.

Watch for the Boston American Industrial Review every day on the Financial Page. Up-to-the-minute news of Labor and Capital from all parts of New England.

BIG MEDBURY

Says a Girl May Have Her Head on Your Shoulder, but her Mind Is on Food

The other day some guy wrote a song called "I'm hungry for the beautiful girls, but they're too hungry for me," and there is more truth in it than music.

Every time you call on a girl the first thing she thinks about is eating.

She may have her head on your shoulder, but her mind is on food.

You may be well read, but the only literature she wants to talk about are menus and bills of fare.

Her favorite author is a la Carte.

She's fond of reading, but she wants to do it in a cafe.

A girl may have studied Greek when she went to school, but it didn't do her any good. She won't go to that kind of a restaurant with you today.

Appearances are deceiving. A girl may have a table d'hote look and a "regular dinner" voice, but the chances are she's got an a la carte habit.

They don't care whether the food is good as long as the restaurant has music and table cloths.

She waits until the orchestra is playing good and loud so you can't hear what she's ordering.

One guy took a dame out to dinner who was on a diet and the check was twenty-seven dollars. He was afraid to take her out to eat when she got her health back.

Very few girls like to walk after a dinner. They want you to take them there in a taxicab.

Not many dames will quarrel with you before a meal. They won't fight with you until after they've eaten.

It's very hard to spoil the modern girl's appetite. You can't even hurt it by filling her with food.

Thousands of people are starving in Russia, but they're just as many hungry women in this country.

Of course this kind of a girl only gets invited out once a week, but she eats enough to last her that long.

It's true that a lot of girls fast, but they're always ready to break it as soon as they meet you.

The average dame wants to eat in a first class place because she likes the atmosphere. This is why so many of them get the air.

SCHOOL ROW IN WINCHESTER SPLITS TOWN

By ERNEST T. JENKINS

Winchester is divided into two camps today following the exclusive announcement by the Boston American that eleven of the town's public school teachers, including Principal Edward E. Thompson of the high school, have not been re-elected to their positions for the coming year.

Five of the eleven are protected under the school tenure act, which provides a teacher shall be given a written statement of reasons for dismissal and opportunity of a hearing. These five have been "notified informally" by Superintendent of Schools John R. Fahey that their work is unsatisfactory.

The other six, comprising high and elementary school teachers, who do not come under the tenure act have been notified they have not been re-elected. Formal action will come at the next meeting of the school committee.

The names of seven of those slated for dismissal, all teachers in the high school, are:

Principal Edward E. Thompson. Graduate of Brown University. Specialized one year at Berlin University. A teacher for twenty-two years. Comes under the tenure act.

Arthur E. Sutters, mathematics. Came to Winchester in 1913. Graduate of University of Maine.

Miss Marjorie N. Wekes, head of English department. Under tenure act. Came to Winchester in 1908. Graduate of Radcliffe College.

Miss Frances G. Allison, teacher of Spanish. Under the tenure act. Came to Winchester in 1914. Graduate of Tufts College.

Miss Louise R. Lester, science teacher. Under tenure act. Came to Winchester in 1916. Graduate of Mt. Holyoke College.

Miss Marion A. Lewis, teacher of household arts. Not under tenure act. Came to Winchester in 1921. Graduate of New Hampshire State College.

Miss Mary D. Weeden, physical training. Came to Winchester in 1921. Graduate of Wheaton College and Sargent School.

Friends of Principal Thompson and the teachers are preparing to fight the dismissals and attack Superintendent Fahey.

The School Committee, comprising six members and headed by Robert Guild, former Harvard football star, is reported to be divided on the question.

Two years ago the United States conducted a survey of the Winchester school system, paying particular attention to the high school. Except for several minor criticisms, the high school and the schools as a whole were ranked with the best.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS AND COMMENT

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE movie contest being waged in New York has a new system, official and unofficial. The ballots are coming in so thick and fast that special accountants have been employed to keep track of the favorites. According to their statistics, Madge Kennedy leads, with Constance Binney, Billie Burke and Marion Davies following in order. According to last minute computations that have not yet been made official, Marion Davies is comfortably in the lead, with Billie Burke in second place. As for the men, Edward Earle holds the headline position, with Tom Mix in second place. Here's the official count:

Madge Kennedy	38,074
Constance Binney	36,653
Billie Burke	35,121
Marion Davies	31,239
Mary Pickford	12,483
Mrs. Lydig Hoyt	11,191
Actors.
Edward Earle	5,365
Tom Mix	3,973
Will Rogers	3,579
Larry Semon	3,120
Charlie Chaplin	2,826
Jackie Coogan	2,816

It is interesting to see that the actors' votes stand at the 5,000 mark, whereas the actresses' are quoted at 38,000. Since it is unofficially announced that Miss Davies is ahead by a comfortable margin, she is probably somewhere about the 50,000 mark. As for the men, it is noticeable that the comedians and cowboys rank as favorites over the more romantic players.

HUGHES VERSATILE

RUPERT HUGHES, incidentally, has signed a new contract with that company. He will not only write original stories for them, but he will cast them, write the continuity, direct them, and edit them for final release. He has not, to date, announced a desire to appear in them. Many directors do. Also, many stars insist on directing.

Mr. Hughes, however, is well fitted for his new job. He has studied the motion picture industry thoroughly. He has clearly shown what he can do in the story line and has had more to do with the actual filming of his scripts than most people suppose. His pictures should draw well.

MIRIAM COOPER IN STOCK.

SUMMER stock engagements are luring more than a few of our film stars. Following on the announcement of Mary MacLaren playing in stock in Baltimore, and Nan Collins starting an engagement in the Middle West, comes word that Miriam Cooper has left the Kling Fights for a few weeks while she tries out the footlights of a stock company in Springfield, Mass.

Miriam Cooper.

Miss Cooper's husband, Raoul Walsh, has just signed on the dotted line to make productions for the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. This company already has on its roster of directors Maurice Tourneur, Marshal Neilan, Allen Holubar and Rupert Hughes.

MARY THURMAN DECIDING.

MARY THURMAN, who graduated from the bathing girl comedies to the serious type of acting, is now preparing for a venture on the Keith circuit. She came from Hollywood with Mae Collins some weeks ago and has signed to appear with Richard Barthelmess in his next Inspiration production, "The Bondboy." Mary Allen will also be seen in this film.

What Miss Thurman's plans are regarding a vaudeville engagement is not made clear. In fact, she has not definitely decided to try it.

SCOTT FITZGERALD FILMED.

AN announcement that is hard to believe is that F. Scott Fitzgerald's new book, "The Beautiful and Damned" will be on the Warner Brothers' schedule for production the coming Fall.

The notices that came gave this as definite information, but it seems improbable, though not impossible. The actual plot and sustained action of the story—if any—is hard to find. It is, rather, a "talky-talky" type of story that should not be popular with censors or prohibition agents, although it does, in a way, show "the evil of Demon Rum!" It began to look as if Warner Brothers buy film rights to books from looking at the publishers' reports of best sellers. Still, they have signed up a number of real melodramas that will prove sure-fire box office successes.

DANCER'S VOICE ON PHONE WINS BRIDE

New York, May 10.—The voice of Olga Krogoll, dancer of the Folkine ballet in "Mecca," charmed Admiralus Peterse three years ago when he heard her talking over the phone to a friend. Last Monday the same voice said "I do" in answer to the clergyman.

WILL GOVERN CHINA UNDER YANKEE PLAN

By EDNA LEE BOOKER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Pao Ting Fu, China, May 10.—General Wu Pei-Fu, victor over the Manchurian army of General Chang Tso-Lin and virtually dictator of China, declared today that he will call all the Chinese people into a conference to adopt plans for a government modelled after that of the United States.

Both General Wu and the Christian General Feng Yu-Hsiang are certain that they will conquer all of China. They are still being resisted in the South by the army of Sun Yat Sen, head of the Cantonese government. General Feng said that his soldiers—all of whom had been converted to Christianity by missionaries—went into battle wearing armbands reading: "For God and country, kill all and spare none." General Wu, who is the ruler of North China, gave the following exclusive interview to the International News Service:

"With victory at hand we are already planning the future of China. We shall call together all the Chinese people in conference within a year to plan for a Chinese government patterned after that of the United States, so far as it can be adapted to China.

"We will rid China of all pro-Japanese traitors, settle the disturbances in the Shantung peninsula and strive to fulfill the expectations of the Washington conference."

Real Life in Movieland

is pictured in the new novel

By Rupert Hughes

THIS great story will begin in next Saturday's Boston American. Every movie fan in America will want to read it for it takes the reader into the most intimate lives of the actors and actresses of the films, who have made, in southern California, a world of their own. You will wonder, you will gasp, and you will thrill at the revelations in the story which is by all odds the "realest" novel ever written by its famous author.

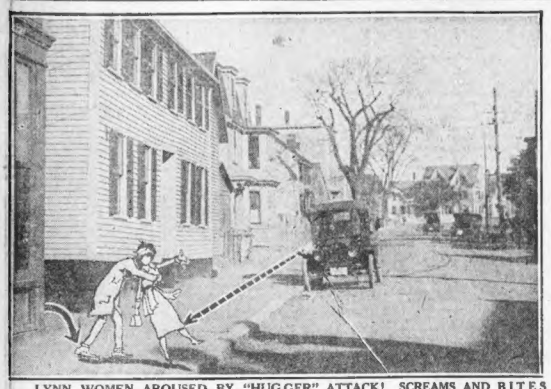
CHARGES HUSBAND BROUGHT WIFE NO. 2 HOME AS 'STAR BOARDER'



LYNN WOMEN AROUSED BY "HUGGER" ATTACK! SCREAMS AND BITES greeted the mysterious attacker who pounced on Miss Sadie Gilhooley, nineteen, of No. 130 Fayette street, Lynn, near her home. Photo-diagram shows course of the girl and where assailant lay in wait for her. Her clothing was torn and she lost one shoe in the struggle.

IT'S A POOR THIEF THAT'LL RIFLE A POOR BOX! Photo-diagram shows the cunning method used in an attempt to rifle poor box of a South Boston church, and which led to arrest of Lawrence Boucher of Chandler street, South End. When arrested he had over $250 in bills, silver and pennies in his possession. Gum, the police say, was attached to a long wire to "fish out" the money.

BRINGS HOME WIFE NO. 2 AS THE STAR BOARDER! MRS. SARAH WEINER wife of Frank Weiner, now under indictment in Suffolk County on the charge of bigamy, and her three children. Mrs. Weiner says on her arrival from Russia her husband brought home a Miss Sarah Foss, whom, she alleges, her husband married three years ago. The girl has fled.

SEA GREEN FROCK THAT WILL MAKE YOUR women friends see green! This charming garment, fashioned of crepe de chine embroidered in white wool, is ideal for chilly Spring days. A white hat, also embroidered in wool, sets the frock off to good advantage.

MISS CHARLOTTE I. Moore of No. 73 Marianna street, Lynn, just selected from a group of twenty-five to join a New York opera company.

HELPING THE HELP- less to get a little joy out of life! Little Mary Elizabeth Johnson, ten years old, of No. 209 Willow avenue, West Somerville, who regularly takes her nimble toes to the Public Health Hospital in West Roxbury where she entertains the patients with her charming dances. Her next performance at the institution will be given on May 17.

LOVE ME, LOVE MY DOGGIE! Hazel Seare, pretty Boston girl, takes to radio like a duck to water, even though she is what the office boy calls a chicken. She says traveling folks should keep their pets happy by "talking" to them over the radio.

SHE'S GOT HER HAMMER OUT, but it's for a good cause! Mrs. C. Paul Denckla, society woman of Boston and Philadelphia, journeyed to the Quaker City the other day and helped "sassiety" folk there build the stage for a pony and dog show. (Keystone.)

WATCH OUT OR THE GOBLINS WILL CATCH YOU! Unusual novelties will mark this year's play at the Boston Girls' Latin School. These youngsters are goblins—o-o-o-h!—who are going to gobble in the "Goblin Fairy" operetta to be given next Friday evening. Left to right, Natalie Dowd, Virginia Louis and Barbara Heath.

TAXING THE TAX-PAYER'S PATIENCE! WHAT curbs home building in Greater Boston? Here's one answer! Miss C. L. Ward of No. 7 Arthur street, Somerville, paid taxes of $83.60 on her property in 1917. In 1921 her tax bill was $121.29. The valuation was only increased $100. That's putting the "ax" in tax with a vengeance. Doesn't seem to be any need of a probe on house

"CONSTANCE COMES TO TOWN!" FOR THE first time in several years Boston is playing host to a British man-o-war, the H. M. S. Constance, which is now lying in the Boston navy yard. The crew was officially represented in a visit to City Hall by Captain Arthur C. Strutt, who was introduced by Thomas F. Porter, British consul.

BEARS—BOTH OF 'EM! MISS HELEN B. RUSSELL of North Woodstock, N. H., not only knicked a $5 award as a pretty Knicker Girl, but apparently she has also knicked something else. She was barely able to get him—but she got him! Enter your knicker photo today. Address Pictorial Editor, Boston American.

RADIO FAN CAN IMPROVE HIS CRYSTAL SET

By A. B. HOAG.

What can I do to my crystal set to increase its efficiency?

That question is continually cropping up and is one of the most difficult to answer outright. If the various parts of the set are working at maximum efficiency, then the question is practically unanswerable.

The vital point of the set is of course the crystal. Some crystals are better than others. This is true even of tested crystals. So if you think your set is not working at its best, squander another two bits on another crystal.

Even a good crystal will deteriorate in time, and this is especially true of galena if it is exposed to the air. Sensitive specimens of galena are also difficult to find, yet good specimens are very sensitive indeed. Specimens of silicon are more generally sensitive.

BEWARE OF GREASE.

Any crystal must be handled with care. It should be protected from dust and it should not be handled by the bare fingers, as a bit of grease destroys its sensitivity.

Galena is most satisfactory when used with a catwhisker. Silicon can be used with a light contact also, but it gives good results under considerable pressure. It is therefore valuable for semi-permanent adjustment.

The different points on the surface of a galena crystal vary greatly in intensity. Good specimens of silicon, however, have sensitive spots all over their surface which vary little in sensitivity. A sensitive spot on a galena crystal may lose its sensitivity entirely if acted on by a [illegible] strong current, such as might be induced by static.

The aerial is an important part of the equipment with any kind of a set. If you are not getting the results you wish with a crystal detector, survey the aerial and see if you cannot make it longer or lift it higher.

CAREFUL TUNING.

Careful tuning is a great aid to successful operation of a crystal set. If you have a tuning coil that is tapped very broadly, say every ten turns, you should use a variable condenser. Otherwise the proper inductance for exact tuning may come between two taps and be unavailable.

A fixed or phone condenser should be used shunted around the phones. This is a big assistance to good reception, and the condenser is not expensive.

Finally, although some owners of V. T. sets affect to despise it, the crystal detector properly adjusted and equipped is an excellent device. It is simpler than the vacuum tube, cheaper, and causes less distortion. It should bring in Medford and the [illegible] Radio Institute anywhere in Greater Boston without difficulty, and occasionally the careful operator is rewarded by hearing the more distant stations.

J. J. B., Lawrence—If there is no connection between the rotor and stator of your variometer, it is a variocoupler. I do not see why you use an [illegible] and variometer together in the primary circuit. The fixed condenser should be shunted around your phones and not around the B battery. Otherwise your hookup is all right.

X. Y. Z., Malden—The taps of a coil should be made as the coil is being wound. If you wish to take taps off every fifth turn, for instance, make a small loop in the wire at every fifth turn, twisting the loop a few times so that it will stay in shape. When the coil is completely wound connect short wires from these loops to switch points arranged in a semi-circle so that a switch arm will make contact with them as it is rotated. A single wire from 100 to 200 feet long, insulated at both ends, and a lead in taken off from near one end will serve you for antenna.

PIANOS CUT PRICE SALE

WHEN you want to buy a piano, no matter what make, come here, where selling pianos is reduced to a science to benefit you. Remember this—if I did not sell pianos much lower than others I would not be, as I am, the largest individual piano retailer in New England. Any piano is just as good if bought here as it would be if bought in the warerooms of its maker. These beautiful instruments, acknowledged to be the world's leading makes, are in this sale at prices that startle the piano world and the piano-buying public, because of the fact that the quotations are so low that they seem ridiculous and almost unbelievable.

In comparison with other prices mine certainly do seem foolishly low, and it would seem to the average person that my prices are TOO low—all out of proportion to the value of the instruments. Be that as it may, I will sell at prices quoted and deliver the goods. Sincerely, J. P. COLLINS.

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Remembering what a terrific job Lawson Robertson's Pennsylvania team put over on Dartmouth last Saturday, one may find it difficult to believe that Jack Moakley's Cornell array will turn the tables on the Red and Blue this week. But such is the case, according to the always interesting and fairly accurate dope

There is no question Coach Robbie" has developed some very fine track athletes, just as there is no question Coach Jack has developed some still finer ones in the majority of the fifteen events on the Ithaca program.

In fact there appear but three Pennsy men sure of scoring first places. Larry Brown in the hammer and possibly the 440; George Snyder in the javelin throw and possibly the shot put, and Armond Rose in the broad jump.

There is a chance Harold Lever will come through in one or both of the dashes; another chance for Holden in the 440, and, if Kimball has not fully recovered from the injury he sustained in the indoor intercollegiates, George Powers of Penn may do the same stunt in the hurdles as he did at Dartmouth last week.

Yet with Penney realizing fully on all these chance shots the Ithacans would still retain a winning margin of points. So the old bank roll can be panned on Cornell without much fear and trembling

Several of the rival athletes have met in their specialties already this season. In the sprints Lovejoy of Cornell won over Lever of Penn at the indoor intercollegiates; in the same meet Bob and Norman Brown of Ithaca took the measure of Head of Penn in the two-mile run; Kimball of Cornell placed in the indoor hurdles, whereas Powers was shut out, while the majority of the field events mentioned in the comparison of the Red and Blue individual leaders or at the Penn relay carnival, scoring marks which led to the arrangement above listed.

The decision of Larry Brown to run the 440 and 880 eliminates the real thrill of his expected clash with Eddie Kirby of Cornell in the latter mile run.

Both men are almost sure placers in the coming Intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field games at the Harvard stadium, and the anticipated meeting was expected to feature the Cornell-Pennsylvania dual meet.

The sprint battles between Lovejoy of Ithaca, and Lever of Philadelphia, is another with intercollegiate honors for both are almost sure of scoring in the intercollegiate event.

Lever's best chance appears to be in the century. He is exceptionally speed-minded and while he runs with his legs with rare speed, the longer distance will favor powerful Lovejoy to a certain extent to overhaul him in the final stretch. It is not to do the same for the 220.

Pete Hill, Joe Scally, O. K. and Ed Guinlock, both of Cornell, should prove the high scorers of the meet with the former figuring prominently in the 100-yard dash and the latter in the pole vault, hurdles and sprints.

PIRATES HOPE TO LAND "REB" RUSSELL

Minneapolis, May 10.—The Pittsburgh National's are reported to be seeking the services of "Reb" Russell, heavy hitting outfielder of the Minneapolis American Association team, but Minneapolis is reluctant to sell him for the reported price, $5,000.

Russell's batting, which includes seven home runs, has been a factor in bringing Minneapolis to the front in the American Association race

SCHOOL BOAT RACES ON THE CHARLES

By FRED C. LANE

The waters of the Charles River, which have hardly subsided after the churning they got on Saturday, will be the scene of much schoolboy activity this afternoon when two scholastic crew races will be held This favored body of water, that can tell many a tale of hard-fought struggles, will have two more to add to its long list this afternoon.

No definite time has been set for these races as Dame Nature has much to say as to conditions. But if the wind calms down about 3.30 p. m. the first race will start from the Cottage Farm bridge.

Lynn English, one of the new schools to cast its lot with rowing, will make a second attempt to win over Rindge Technical. The Lynn school lost their first try of the season two weeks ago, when they went down to defeat before the Charlestown School oarsmen.

Rindge Has Taken the Number of the Exeter Crew

In Rindge they will meet a school that has taken the number of Exeter and many of the best in that section. It should make a thrilling race from start to finish.

Shortly after these two crews pass under Harvard Bridge, the finish mark, Huntington School will race the four from Browne and Nichols. The private school championship rests on the winner of this spurt, and what a race it will be

Huntington is much stronger on the river this year than in past decades. Although Brown and Nichols has won over Rindge and a few of the private institutions of these parts one can rest assured that it will be no pink tea affair. Both have blood in their eyes

Marblehead-Lynn English Game Best on the Schedule.

For those that would rather take in a ball game, today's card furnishes the opportunity. Now that the final push is on, more startling plays will be on tap, for the crowds that will flie to the local orchards. The most important of these games will be the Marblehead Lynn English battle at Little River, Lynn.

The Lynn team has won six straight games this Spring, and will leave nothing undone to show a clean slate at the season's close. Mark Head is runnerup to the Lynn school, which is leading the North Shore League race. A loss by English will put it in a tie position with Lynn English

Should Coach Sexton's boys get over this barrier, the remainder of the season will be easy sailing. On Saturday Lynn Classical will be encountered. Since both these schools have been bitter rivals in all lines of sport for many years, this game should be a hummer.

"Hig" Rob Rickle will be sent to the mound for the Lynn nine, while Gene Woods of Marblehead will be used by Coach Hig.

HYDE SCHOOL WALLOPS WABAN, 31 TO 8

CRIMSON CLASH WITH PURPLE TODAY

New England's greatest collegiate baseball game of the season will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the diamond at Soldiers Field, when the unbeaten Harvard team plays against the powerful Holy Cross nine from Worcester.

Holy Cross has met with some stiff opposition this Spring and, although Jack Barry's Purple team has met with defeat at the hands of Yale and Georgetown, it will be a great favorite when the teams face each other this afternoon

The fact that Harvard has met with very little formidable opposition this year is the reason given for the favoring of the Purple colors by collegiate baseball followers

Goode Will Be on Mound for the Harvard Nine

Eddie Goode will be on the mound for Harvard and is expected to pitch his usual brilliant brand of game. In this, his fourth assignment against Holy Cross

Goode is one of the brainiest moundsmen in college ranks. In 1920 he pitched Harvard to a 1 to 0 victory over Holy Cross, but in 1921 the Worcester team more than evened the score against Eddie, leaving him at the short end of a 3 to 1 game at Soldiers Field, and then for good measure took him and his team into camp by a 12 to 6 count.

The defeat of Holy Cross by Yale last Saturday at Worcester is the surprise of the season. This is the third reverse that the Purple team has had on the Worcester diamond in the past two seasons. It was also most unexpected, for Harvard had Yale already lashed to the mast, on the books.

CHAPIN ELIGIBLE TO RUN 220 FOR HARVARD

The news that Vinton Chapin, the Harvard football and track athlete will be able to compete against Yale next Saturday at the Stadium comes as a complete surprise.

It was thought at the Cambridge university that Chapin was out of competition this Spring on account of being academically ruled last February in the Harvard Dartmouth Cornell triangular meet.

If Chapin is able to show his old style in the 220 Harvard will be able to add some more points to its score where every point is needed.

At the present time Yale is the dopesters' choice, but the bulldog will not growl so loudly when he hears the news that the boy who picked up his feet and ran 55 yards in the Stadium one day last November on the gridiron will make the cinders fly.

REPORT EBBETS MARRIED TO MRS. NOTT

New York, May 10.—Charles H. Ebbets, part owner and president of the Brooklyn baseball club, is reported to have re-married. His first wife, Mrs. Minnie F. Ebbets, obtained a divorce last January, after having failed to win a suit brought two years ago.

Ebbets' new wife is said to have been Mrs. Grace Slade Nott.

CALZA PICKED BY JACK CONWAY TO BEAT LONDOS TONIGHT

GIANT GRAPPLERS IN BATTLE AT ARENA

WRESTLING PROGRAM AT ARENA

John Kilonis vs. Pinky Gardner to a positive finish, one fall.

By JACK CONWAY

Jim Londos, Greek heavyweight wrestling champion, will make a lucky bid to stop George Calza's long run of victories when he clashes with the Italian title holder in a finish mat bout at the Boston Arena tonight.

This is the most important wrestling contest to be staged in this city in many months.

A capacity crowd is expected to be on hand to witness festivities. Calza and Londos clashed at the Grand Opera House, more than 2000 persons were turned away.

It will be the old story of a clever, veteran, with years of experience, being opposed by a young, aggressive youth who has the world of confidence in his own ability.

Londos is the world's lightheavyweight champion. At 190 to 3 pounds he is virtually unbeatable. Furthermore he has stopped most of his class on several occasions and secured falls in matches with Stanislaw Lewis and Wladek Pazkiz.

Calza Has Won Eighteen Matches in a Row

Calza will try to secure revenge for the setbacks received by Gardini. He points to the fact he has scored fifteen straight victories since coming to this country. Gardini, Tommy Drasic and Yusaff Hussmans have been numbered among his victims.

Calza is not as fast and scientific as Londos but he appears strong enough to break almost any hold he may have seen him kick his way out of. The holds in the most nonchalant manner.

It will be the second meeting between Calza and Londos. Their last contest was a handicap affair. Londos agreed to toss Calza twice in an hour, but was unable to do so.

The Greek champion says it will be a different story tonight. He believes that the Italian mat star will tire after an hour of grappling. Londos says he will then surge to victory.

This writer is going to let his reputation as a prophet ride on Calza. At first blush it may appear as if we are making a very foolish selection. Londos, of course, has experience and skill. But Calza is a grappler under mat star. What he lacks in knowledge of the fine points of the grappling game, he makes up for by his strength and aggressiveness.

Psychology Will Also Help Calza to Win

We also believe that psychology will play a part in Calza's victory. He has won eighteen straight matches and will naturally figure he will be in another victory tonight. He's also a confident kid and will not be frightened by Londos' great reputation.

We had our doubts about Calza's ability as a wrestler up to the time he defeated Gardini. In winning over Gardini in 2 hours and 55 minutes he proved he is one of the most dangerous mat men of recent years. Anyhow the old reputation whirls along with Calza. Maybe Londos will throw us for a loss, but that's one of the chances us dopesters are obliged to take.

John Kilonis will oppose Pinky Gardiner in another finish match. While Joe Turner and Charley Metro have also booked to quarrel to a finish.

One fall will decide the preliminaries, while it will be two out of three, American rules, in the Calza-Londos bout. This means that if either man secures a fall inside of two hours that the winner will have to gain two falls. But in the event that neither man is able to gain a fall within two hours, one fall will decide the match. Under any conditions the affair will be to a finish.

Reservations may be secured at the Old Howard, telephone Haymarket 1455, and at the Boston Arena, telephone 4461. There will be popular prices of $1, $2 and $3.

Jack Conway Names Calza to Win Over Londos

Jack Conway has whirled forth with the glad tidings that George Calza will defeat Jim Londos in the big wrestling match at the Boston Arena tonight.

The wise talent figures Londos will grab the honors. The Greek champion rules a favorite in the early betting.

Jack, however, says Calza's strength and aggressiveness will send Londos down to defeat. He predicts a furious battle, but figures that Calza will gain the honors.

Jack admits he is fearful Londos will toss him for a loss.

SHEVLIN LOSES ON DOUBTFUL VERDICT

Worcester, May 10.—Jack Perry of Pittsburgh was given the decision over Eddy Shevlin of Roxbury in a ten-round bout at the Casino tonight. The verdict was booed by the crowd, a majority of whom appeared to think that the Dartmouth instructor should have been given the palm.

Perry had 1¼ pounds on Shevlin, who weighed 148 and did not appear to be in his best shape. Perry scored a clean knockdown in the sixth round and did most of the leading. He hit harder than Shevlin, too, but Shevlin hit Perry almost two to one.

Shevlin's defense was almost perfect. He came through without a scratch while Perry was bleeding at the mouth.

Shevlin's left jab worked well and Perry, who appeared stronger and more rugged than Eddie, missed many a swing which would have meant curtains for Shevlin had they connected.

In the semi-final Barney Burke of Worcester knocked out Joe O'Brien of Roxbury in the fourth round. Pete Casey of Worcester knocked out Gus Gardella of Millbury in the second round, and Young Geary defeated Mickey Green in six rounds.

BRAVE TWIRLER LOSES GAME ON BUNT

Cincinnati, O., May 10.—One little bunt probably prevented Rube Marquard from pitching the Braves to victory over the Reds in his first start of the season against his old club, and also shoved the Boston gang deeper into last place.

There still is hope for the Braves emerging from the cellar while here. They can do it by winning the remaining two games of the series, and it seems likely Dana Fillingim and John Watson will be called on to do the hurling in those games.

Adolfo Luque is due to pitch for the Reds today, and since he seems unable to win this year, the Braves are not a bit downcast about the second battle of the series.

Although Marquard's failure to field a bunt paved the way for the Reds to win Tuesday's game, the Braves think a train wreck in which they were caught while en route to Cincinnati, had something to do with it.

When about an hour out of town Tuesday morning, one of the two engines, pulling the train, jumped the track.

The air brakes immediately were slammed on and everyone on the train given a thorough shaking up, although none was injured. This accident occurred just as most of the Braves who were coming in from Harrisburg were eating breakfast. It spoiled their day for them but despite the bend Marquard's good pitching, they played a bang-up article of ball the first few innings.

Marquard retired the Reds in order in the first four frames and got by the fifth without any scoring although touched up for a pair of singles.

Pinelli opened the sixth for the Reds by laying down a bunt along the first base line. Marquard made a rather good play on it, but not quickly enough to head off the fast little third sacker at first. Donohue followed with another bunt straight at Marquard.

BABE RUTH WILL LEAVE HOSPITAL TODAY

New York, May 10.—Babe Ruth, who underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils several days ago, will be able to leave the hospital today, his physicians expected. He has made a rapid recovery and is confident he will be in condition to get back into the game May 20, the date his suspension expires.

ANDERSON SAILS FOR BRITISH GOLF MEET

New York, May 10.—John G. Anderson, metropolitan amateur golf star, sailed today for England, where he will compete in the British amateur championship at Prestwick, May 22 to 27.

Other American golfers expected to take part in the British tournament include George A. Dixon, Jr., and C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., of the National Links, John D. Chapman of Greenwich and Donald Parson of Youngstown, Ohio.

RED SOX GO AFTER THE TIGERS AGAIN

By NICK FLATLEY.

Ty Cobb intended to display one of baseball's most expensive youngsters this afternoon at Fenway Park, and additionally try to make his third straight dent in the Red Sox averages. The youth with the dollar signs is one Herman Pillette, a young right-hand pitcher, who was graduated to the big leagues from the Portland Coast League team.

Herman, and a teammate, Johnson, came to the Tigers in exchange for the slight matter of eight ball players and a cash deposit of $40,000. The whole works figure pretty close to six figures, which gave the youngmen in quest on a whole lot of publicity before they ever appeared under the big tent.

The pair of them have been pitching good ball this Spring with the Pillette party being about the best of the whites Tiger staff. He didn't look so good in the South but once the campaign was under way, he was present with a large assortment of stuff, the whole crossing up the rival fans on the cookie. Most of them like Cy Youngs down in the tool belt, and then fold up when the real hitters get busy.

Johnson Broke His Hand During the Training Season

Young Johnson broke his hand during the training season, but before the accident showed Manager Ty enough to make that shrewd bird believe the kid is a really classy heaver. He is able to work a little now but it will be a couple of weeks before he can put all his stuff on the ball.

Pillette will get a real test if he works here, for the Sox are said enough to stage an insurrection any time. They expected a few easy wins over the Michiganders and instead have twice been thumped very soundly on the point of the jaw.

The hitters haven't bothered the enemy pitching at all to speak of, and batting is the principal strength of the Fenway outfit. So some Tiger pitcher is going to die for a quick trip to the showers.

The hitters may have designs on Pillette, but they'll have to get by Harry Heilman are three of the toughest obstacles to get by that you can find in any one batting order. And the chaps around them are no pushovers, either. The team seems to be pretty well ironed out now and the effervescent manager can see anything ahead but a lot of glory and victory.

On the third hole at Winchester A. M. Bond's tee shot was twenty yards beyond the trees at the left, the ball carrying right through the middle and with a flier he had home and would have been well over had he not been stopped by the ball of his opponent which was resting near the pin. As a result the opponent's ball rolled to the face of the green while Bond's rolled off. The four of Bond won the hole. It might have only been a five, but the second was a great shot.

THE BEAUTY SHOP

A Story of Romance, Adventur and Laughs

A Sparkling Tale of Two Countries, in Which the Versatile Hero Wins a Bride Instead of a Fortune

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

READ THIS FIRST

Dr. Arbutus Budd, proprietor of "The Beauty Shop," trades a dozen bottles of perfume for a uniform belonging to the Duke of Sizerella. He uses his own face and the headgear thus acquired as a trademark. This trademark is recognized in Bologna, Spain, as bearing the crest of the Sizerellas. Panatella, a hotelkeeper; Sobini, an undertaker, and Maldonado, a nobleman, want a Sizerella in Bolonia. Sobini goes to New York and persuades the doctor to claim the Sizerella estates. Budd, with his manager, Briggs, and his lovely ward, Anna, start for Spain with Sobini.

(The Beauty Shop," the play by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, has been created into a photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction of Edward Dillon, scenario by Doty Hobart. It will be released as a Paramount Picture.)

HE glanced toward Sobini. That gentleman shrugged his shoulders.

"Come across Sobini," said the young man.

"Don't annoy our little playmate, Briggs; he's explained it all to me."

"Well, if he has why don't you go up to the castle and install yourself?"

"Because I want to wait and see this sausage cutting, my boy. I've been longing to lamp a duel ever since I saw Dopey Dick, blackjack Sergeant Casey down on Chatham Square."

Sobini jerked his head toward the doctor.

"Is—Sizerella is?" Briggs asked in astonishment.

"It's all for him," said Sobini sadly.

"What's that?" cried the doctor, waking up. "I'm in it! No, Sobini; I couldn't fight a duel; I'd rather apologize. I've killed too many men in my day and I simply can't bear to shed any more blood."

"Tell it to Maldonado," said the imperturbable Sobini.

"He means tell it to Sweeney," suggested Briggs.

"There is your opponent." Sobini pointed to the huge form of Maldonado passing out of the house.

Nothing Coming

The doctor rubbed his eyes. "What a pleasant little fellow he is. No, Sobini, old dear; really I haven't a duel personality and I couldn't bear to hurt your friend." Sobini merely uttered the concrete words: "See you on the dueling ground after sundown," and moved away, like the pussyfoot he was.

"This is serious, Briggs," said the doctor. "I don't want to fight a duel——"

"How much have you got coming to you?" asked the practical Briggs.

"Nothing, Briggs, I didn't want to tell you but I've had a rude awakening — those towers with the exposed plumbing are nothing but hollow shells—the diamonds, rubies, laces and so forth were squandered by my great great great greats et al. I have been lured over here to make a Spanish holiday and I resent it, Briggs, I resent it."

"I'm afraid that won't help you —what are the weapons, pistols or rapiers, or both?"

The doctor shuddered. "I have an idea," he said, between shakes, "it's just occurred to me—the feud has been wished on me because they believe I'm a Sizerella —well I'm not—why didn't we think of that before? I shall tell them I am one of the common people with no drop of Sizerellian blood in my arteries."

Sobini returned bearing with him a pistol, as heavy as a small musket. "This is the weapon, Excellency, with which you are to defend the honor of your family."

"Never mind that, Sobini, I tell you now and here in the presence of my lawyer, I am not a Sizerella."

"Tell it to Maldonado," replied the astute Sobini, "such a story will no doubt excite his anger and he will kill you twice instead of once. However, why should I handy words—here is your pistol —it has been known to go off, but even if it doesn't, the sentiment is in it—Farewell, Excellency—I am glad to have known you, but my duty is clear—I go now to prepare for the funeral."

"Rare sense of humor, hasn't he?" asked Briggs as the doctor carefully laid aside the pistol.

"Briggs," said the doctor, "the time for looseness has passed—I feel a singular distaste for this place—I would away secretly but swiftly, if you get what I mean."

"Easier said than done, Doc—however, I'll bent it and see if I can find a time table—you remain here and don't get nervous—you've got a few hours more to live, anyway."

A Bold Air

The doctor tried to assume a bold air, but he was conscious of shooting pains in his vendetta and his cheeks were flushed. If he only had his lusty trombone—he actually longed for the commonplace quiet of the laboratory and the dulcet tones of The Beauty Shop.

Past him went tripping the beautiful Coca, or was it Cola? He bolted forward and caught her arm.

"Pippin," he said hoarsely, "tell me the worst."

The young lady stared at him as she jerked her arm free. "I shall speak to Senor Maldonado about you—he has a cure for mashers that you'll remember, you great big tinsel doll!"

Somewhere in the back of his head he remembered a poem about romance being dead—he unburdened his soul to the returning Briggs.

"My boy, I'm all in—the only romance I ever had lasted about as long as a celluloid collar on a fireman—let me see the time table, Briggs; I don't care what happens now."

Briggs, realizing the necessity for haste, opened the folder and read: "The luxurious steamer Swansong leaves Bologna the first Tuesday of each month for the——

"It doesn't matter where it goes," broke in the doctor—"there's a star that means a footnote"—

"Here we are! Will not touch at Bolognia unless Tuesday falls on the sixteenth. N. B. This service will be discontinued from May 11 October."

The two men looked at each oth— Briggs crumpled up the folder. "The fates are against us," moaned the doctor. "What we want to look for now is a one- street leading out."

Enter Cola.

Came tripping the lovely Cola with a flower in her hand which she held out toward the last of his race.

"No, Coca," said the doctor, "I can't take this much-blooming Sizerella from you—you tossed me over the first exaggerated boy scout, and I'm done."

"Oh, senor," said the distressed nymph, "there must be a mistake. I've been way up the mountain to pluck this for you. It's the love flower of death."

"Listen, Peacherino, is there a boat out of here pronto?"

"Oh, yes, senor, the Steve—"

"The Steve. What a name—" shuddered again.

"Si, senor; it used to run across the mighty Hudson between Hoboken and Jersey City."

Dreamer of Dreams.

This is indeed curious if you are not acquainted with medical terms, and can only be explained by the old Roman soothsayer, who declared that all such dreams of unknown diseases were simply warnings of unexpected dangers to the persons of the dreamer. On the contrary, the clear glasses show triumph over bodily ills, so I guess you have nothing to worry about. The term "subcutaneous" means under the skin.

MARY A. FREEMAN.

Meriden, N. H.

ATIMID ghost of 1859 swayed her hooped way down the marbled corridor of a modern hotel, drifted gently and cautiously down a palm-filled, tapestry-hung place of rendezvous and sank with a spectral rustle of silk flounces into a crimson divan.

The gentleman ghost of 1859 had told her he would meet her promptly there for tea if she would so far favor him in the modern way as to come a few steps on her moss-like feet. Incidentally, the reason the gallant, punctilious lover of other dead days was LATE was for a very good reason, that a modern girl understands—a jam in the subway.

But, curiosity of curiosities, then the little ghost's bright brown eyes first turned sideways and completely realized the girl—a girl like herself, with eyes and nose and fingers and toes—who sat near her on the same great crimson couch; and the sulkily beautiful one who sat still beyond! The clocks in the gray stockings on Phyllis, who sat next her, she could understand, for did she not wear gray silk coats with red clocks herself? But her hat and her wild hair! Her plain woolen dress, her firmly planted, wide-apart feet ("She isn't a lady," thought the little ghost), her dress to her knees! The little ghost was shocked and looked wildly away, and wished the gentleman of 1859 would hurry up and come.

And Rubye, the sulky beauty beyond, slouched gracefully down with her silken knees crossed, and in silk that clung and was hung with fur and beads. There was no lace about her, no demureness, no quaintness, no fluff. There was richness and dash!

And from the look—the dumfounded look in the eyes of Phyllis and Rubye—the creep-mousy little ghost knew that they thought her just as queer, just as much of a curiosity as she did them.

Household Hints

Wash enamel pans in hot soda water, remove marks with powdered bathbrick or sifted ashes. Rub stains with lemon skins. Lemons from which the juice has been pressed are useful for this purpose. Rinse, wipe dry with a cloth. Copper pans require great care, as, if neglected, verdigris forms on them, and food cooked in them is liable to become poisonous. If the tinned lining shows signs of wear, the pan should be re-tinned immediately. Clean them with hot soda water, then dip a flannel in fine silver sand or powdered bathbrick.

To work buttonholes smoothly and quickly, mark the size of the buttonhole on the material with a soft pencil, and after it is worked cut open with a sharp penknife. This is especially helpful in working on material that ravels easily.

Cleansing the sleeping rooms is most important. Dust in the beds is dangerous to health; but it is difficult and seems almost impossible sometimes to remove all the dust from the mattresses and pillows. However, there is only a faint chance of any permanency improvement. I have feared that some time. Now I am almost sure—" he paused.

"Yet it is your duty to keep her here as long as possible." Adelaide said in a cold, even tone. "And who knows? She might recover even yet—if."

She stopped short. "No!" she exclaimed, "she cannot get well if she finds out—when she learns—" again she stopped.

If Mixed as Sage and Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use bottled, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period through which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often ushered in with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholy, headaches, dizzy spells, heats and heart flutterings. If these symptoms appear to pass over the body without cause the face to be very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is an inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exerts a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. Let it help carry you through this time of life. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

Fhila., Pa.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I was weak, nervous, dizzy and had headaches. I was troubled in this way for two years and was hardly able to do my work. My friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am very sorry that I did not take it sooner. But I have got good results from it and am now able to do my housework most of the time. I recommend your medicine to those who have similar troubles. I do not like publicity, but if it will help other women I will be glad for you to use my letter."—Mrs. FANNIE ROSENSTEIN, 862 N. Holly Street, Fhila., Pa.

Detroit, Michigan—"During the Change of Life I had a lot of stomach trouble and was bothered a great deal with hot flashes. Sometimes I was not able to do any work at all. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your little books and took it with very good results. I keep, house and am able now to do all my own work. I recommend your medicine and am willing for you to publish this testimonial."—Mrs. J. S. LIVERNOIS, 2051 Junction Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

"O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us To see oursels as others see us."

The Los Angeles Examiner is proud of what advertisers say of its Merchandising Service.

"Your handling of our campaign has been most satisfactory, we having sold since commencement of the newspaper campaign to our distributor, Haas, Baruch & Co., Los Angeles, a little better than a car of packaged cocoa, counting shipment made prior to commencement of campaign under date of October 24. As yet we have not the exact figures showing to what extent the retail distribution has been increased during this campaign, but off-hand would estimate it at at least 20 to 25 per cent over what we had when we commenced operations."—Geo. F. Taylor, Thos. J. Lipton, Inc.

"Of the 1600 grocers in Los Angeles, I have placed Fairy Food Products in over 800 before a line of advertising appeared in your columns. These figures tell the tale of the merchandising department of The Los Angeles Examiner, as we campaigned exclusively through your guidance. Your system of having your field representatives call on the trade in advance of our salesmen has resulted in our getting distribution much quicker and more economically than would have been possible in any other way."—Ralph J. Levy, Fairy Food Products Co.

"We have read the report of the packing situation in Los Angeles and appreciate this information very much. The statement of your merchandising service, which accompanies this, is more definite and comprehensive than anything of the kind we have ever read.—Paul E. Faust, Mitchell-Faust Advertising Co.

"We were very glad to get the sixty-seven photographs of window displays entered in the special Sun-Maid Raisin Contest conducted by your trade paper, The Southwestern Grocer. This is certainly a mighty nice lot of pictures, and we feel sure that these dealers' window displays will be productive of good results in the Los Angeles territory."—V. E. Jinks, California Associated Raisin Co.

"We wish to again express our appreciation of the splendid manner of co-operation received through your publication. The year 1921 was a successful one for us in this territory and we want to thank you for the assistance that was given us in bringing this about. It is a pleasure to work with those that are giving service."—R. F. Haegelin, Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co.

"We have your letter in which you inform us that you are sending us 16 additional photographs of window displays put in by your service department in connection with the full page ad which appeared in your edition of July 3rd. Frankly we are surprised with the wonderful service you are rendering the advertiser in your paper. It will please you to learn that the results we have obtained with your co-operation are very satisfactory."—F. J. Kelly, American Chicle Company.

"Just a line to express our appreciation of the excellent and efficient work which your department is doing. Your co-operation is certainly of the kind that helps bring results, and we assure you that we shall be only too pleased to avail ourselves of it in the coffee campaign which we are now starting."—M. J. Brandenstein & Co.

"For many years I did business as a wholesale grocer with the old firm of Craig & Stuart and know intimately a number of the retail grocers. Judging from your circulation statement and from the class of material in your paper, your Southwestern Grocer is doing a splendid work for the advertiser; at the same time building up for the future of the retail grocers by giving them live suggestions necessary to keep the retail grocers to the front in these days of progress."—E. A. Stuart, Carnation Milk Products Company.

"Both Mr. Botsford and the writer have been very much pleased with the thorough manner in which you co-operated and followed up the advertising, and we have forwarded your reports to the Hood River people that they may see just what has been done for them. Please accept our thanks for the good work done."—H. R. Failing, Botsford-Constantine Company.

"I have your mighty good letter and I want to rise and remark that you people down there have what I call a REAL MERCHANDISING DEPARTMENT, and there is no getting away from the fact that service such as you are giving through this department will result in pulling you much additional foreign advertising."—W. R. Young, Pictorial Review.

"It was my personal privilege to witness the splendid co-operation given by The Los Angeles Examiner during our recent campaign. And, as I wrote you the other day, the fact that your newspaper has been recommended by us for a full schedule in spite of the general curtailment of our appropriation should speak for itself. Money always talks."—B. S. Trynin, California Associated Raisin Co.

"May we not extend to you our thanks for your splendid co-operation in making this campaign the success that your survey proves it to have been. We take pleasure in recommending your publication to anyone who has a product to merchandise through the druggists in your territory. Your conduct of the campaign and your follow-ups could not have been better."—The Miller Rubber Co. of N. Y.

"We are pleased with the work that has been done by your department and with the publicity obtained and the service rendered. We may quite frankly say that our experience with the Los Angeles Examiner has been a revelation of what publicity service can be, when directed by a department that is so evidently filled with enthusiasm, energy, and ability. —W. J. Bush & Co., Inc.

"The four photographs of the prize winning Alpine Milk window displays which we have just seen, impressed us more than ever with the splendid results you have secured for us through your contest. We have expressed our thanks and our compliments to you in previous letters, but we take this opportunity to repeat them once more. Because of your work we are anticipating the finest kind of returns from the Los Angeles market."—Thos. B. Meek, Nestle's Food Co.

"We want to thank you for the copy of the letter from the Modern Pharmacy requesting a Pompeiian window display. It certainly shows that The Southwestern Druggist is read by the trade and we want to compliment you on the splendid service your Merchandising Service Department is rendering."—James King, The Pompeiian Company.

"We have received through the Lord and Thomas Advertising Agency a scrap-book, listing in detail the co-operation rendered by the Los Angeles Examiner through the recent advertising campaign initiated by the California Associated Raisin Co. We were quite interested in the information conveyed therein, and wish to state that it ranks quite favorably with the result accomplished by other newspapers throughout the United States. The only criticism I personally have to make is that you did not include the entire scope of your accomplishment—for instance—duplicate photographs of the excellent window displays that you have secured."—B. S. Trynin, California Associated Raisin Co.

"I thank you very much for your favor of the 15th and the copy of The Southwestern Druggist. You certainly handle your game on a business-like basis, which makes it a pleasure to co-operate with you."—A. H. Clarke, Northam Warren.

Standard of Merchandising Practice for Newspapers

IT IS the opinion of this Committee that newspapers conducting service and merchandising departments should assist advertisers in every legitimate manner to make their campaign successful. The legitimate functions of a merchandising and service department are:

First—To study the local market and trade territory and be able to report intelligently thereon for both local and national advertising.

Second—To furnish such information for prospective advertisers and to make market investigations which may be general in scope and applicable to many accounts, but to insist that the identity of the proposed advertiser be made known before reporting information compiled on a specific line.

Third—To endeavor to educate the dealer in better merchandising methods and to insist that advertised goods be furnished customers rather than "just as good" substitute.

Fourth—To encourage adequate merchandising by supplying data, maps, route lists to the trade for the use of salesmen of the manufacturer or advertiser who has made a bona fide contract for advertising space.

Fifth—To decline requests for service that are clearly not within the province of newspaper, such as selling goods or other canvassing, or the payment of bills for printing and postage of letters, broadsides, etc.

ADOPTED in 1921 by National Association of Newspaper Executives. Prepared by Standing Committee on Agency Relations, M. R. Foster, chairman, and Bert N. Garstin, George M. Burbach, A. G. Newmyer and Frank D. Webb, members

"We desire to express our appreciation of the fine service rendered to our salesmen during the recent sales advertising campaign conducted in Los Angeles and surrounding territory. The campaign was a decided success from every standpoint, and has encouraged us to continue these sales campaigns in other cities."—J. H. Warwood, W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company.

"The value of everything today depends upon the service rendered. We must say that your service is beyond doubt—the best we have had from any publisher."—Calumet Baking Powder Co.

"Again we owe you our thanks for the co-operation you have given us on the Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly advertising campaign in The Examiner, by reproducing one of the ads in The Southwestern Druggist. We therefore take advantage of this opportunity to extend our very best thanks for the wonderful way in which you have handled this whole thing from start to finish."—F. H. Greene, E. P. Remington Adv. Agy.

"We are indeed very pleased to advise you that we are releasing an additional fifteen weeks campaign on the Alpine Evaporated Milk. This schedule will go forward to you within a very few days. At this time I want to express to you our appreciation for the co-operation and care which has been given by you on this campaign. The very fact that we are sending an additional schedule for fifteen weeks shows that the campaign has been successful, and I am sure that you will be pleased to know this." —J. C. Hindle, The Harry Porter Company.

"The comparisons as given in your letter are indeed very interesting, and this is just another example of what the right kind of copy, coupled up with the best merchandising service and placed in the proper mediums will do for a product. Will you be good enough to again express to your publisher both the appreciation of the Nestle's Food Company and ourselves of the exceptional co-operation rendered on this account."—J. C. Hindle, The Harry Porter Company.

"The McCall window was great! We sold all of the September issue and some leftover copies of the August number. You can't beat a window display tie-up with Examiner advertising. Wonderful combination of advertising."—Walter A. Hankammer, Mgr. Guest's Drug Stores.

"A comparison of figures for the same period before and same length of time since I have been exhibiting Examiner-advertised products, shows me a gain of over 35 per cent, and I give the credit of this increase to my Examiner windows more than any other cause. Thank you for inducing me to become one of your regular exhibitors of Examiner-advertised products."—J. H. Smith, Manager, Rock Bottom Store No. 42.

"The copy of The Southwestern Grocer which was received the other morning proved to be of unusual interest and we wish to compliment you on the excellent way that this division of your merchandising service is being handled."—Hills Bros. Co., San Francisco.

"The hearty co-operation you are displaying in conjunction with our advertising campaign is certainly greatly appreciated. We think The Southwestern Druggist is a great booster—from the publisher's, the manufacturer's, and the retailer's point of view."—Gillette Safety Co.

"The good work you have done certainly made itself felt, and shows that when a live, up-to-date newspaper sets out to make its advertising space work effectively, it gets real results."—Wm. H. Rankin Company.

"Please accept our sincere thanks for your report on the local market for canned food products. Through your efforts we are now able to place before our client, information which, under the circumstances, it would have been impractical for us to obtain in any other way. We were all very agreeably surprised at the quality and quantity of information received, and take this opportunity to compliment you on your Service Department."—H. K. McCann Company.

"You certainly bring this right home to your retailers, and we desire to let you know that Wrigley's and ourselves appreciate the splendid co-operation you are giving us."—S. C. Stewart, Stewart-Davis Advertising Agency.

"Please accept our thanks for your favor of August 4th with which you enclosed a most interesting survey of the pineapple situation in Los Angeles. The enterprise of your Merchandising Service Department is deserving of the highest commendation."—Theo. H. Davies & Co., Ltd.

"Once again we are elated over The Examiner Window Trim Contest. The result as announced in the December issue of the Southwestern Grocer not only makes us very happy at the reception given our new window display for Alpine Milk, but also gives us the deepest satisfaction and appreciation of the co-operation rendered by The Los Angeles Examiner in introducing this display to the retail merchants."—Thos. B. Meek, The Nestle's Food Company.

"We have received copy of The Southwestern Druggist and are pleased indeed, with the work you are doing to promote the sale of Peruna in that territory. If more publishers would go after the job in the intelligent way that you do, business would be infinitely better for many of us." —E. J. Heywood, The Peruna Company.

"Please accept our thanks for your promptness and kindness in sending us a service report on Dry Cleaners. Your report covered the situation admirably for our purpose and is being of material assistance in formulating the advertising and merchandising plans of our client. It is indeed a pleasure to see such efficient co-operation."—Ferry-Hanly Advertising Co.

"We assure you that we appreciate the work you are doing to get additional distribution for Calumet. We believe that a very large increase in sales can be traced directly to this, together with the copy we are running, and we certainly hope this combination will continue indefinitely."—Calumet Baking Powder Co.

"We appreciate the information which you gave in your report as well as the suggestions made. In our campaign next year, we hope to profit by this advice."—Plough Chemical Company.

"We have watched your co-operative plans very carefully through the medium of the material you send us and that which is received from our representative in your city, and it is needless to say that we appreciate the work that you are doing very much."—The Geo. F. Eberhard Company.

"We have selected The Examiner because we are familiar with the assistance you give to your advertisers in the matter of window displays, and for the present we are going to use The Examiner exclusively."—Garrett & Company.

"You will be interested to know that the little story of how sardines in smoked Aprol get the kippered flavor, is doing good missionary work. This is shown by the fact that Mr. Connelly, who is representing the W. J. Bush Citrus Products Co., found a number of grocers in San Diego and Coronado who had read the article in The Southwestern Grocer. In one place Mr. Connelly entered the store while the lady was in the act of reading the story. She was more than ordinarily interested, and Mr. Connelly expects to stock Aprol goods with her husband who has been away."—T. H. Shore and Staff.

"I surely appreciate your valued co-operation in connection with the advertising campaign in your good paper and hope it will be the means of making Kondon's sell better than ever before in that territory, and we believe it will. Keep up the good work."—T. N. Kenyon, Kondon Manufacturing Company.

"We greatly appreciate the co-operation which your paper and a few others throughout the country are giving advertising through the circulation of a trade paper such as your Southwestern Druggist. We believe this to be a valuable asset to any advertiser in merchandising his advertising. Repeats in advertising always has its value and we believe that such publicity as you give us from time to time in your Southwestern Druggist as well as the publicity accorded other advertisers possesses a certain amount of intangible benefit which unfortunately cannot always be directly measured."—Kenton Pharmacal Co.

PRINTS OF ALL TEST PROBLEMS AVAILABLE

By THE TEST EDITOR.

Prints of nearly all the problems of the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test still are available and contestants who are short a drawing or two may have them upon application to the Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street. There is a charge of five cents, three cents for one of the drawings and two cents for mailing. A few pictures are out of print.

Those who took part in the Test will have two days more to make up their minds on the problems which have or are giving them the most trouble. All sets of answers must be in the mails by 12 o'clock midnight on Friday night of this week.

BRING OR SEND SETS.

Contestants who prefer may bring their sets to the Boston American office or send them here by messenger. Clerks will be waiting for them in the business office on the street floor. No sets will be received there after 12 o'clock midnight on Friday night.

Reprinting of the test drawings, each with its correct title, will begin on Saturday of this week. In the beginning, and perhaps until after the announcement of the result of the $5,000 Membership Competition, one correct title will be printed daily.

ANSWERS TO ANXIOUS.

M. L. L., Boston—If you will read the rules carefully you will observe that no contestant is permitted to send in more than one set of answers. I have not said that a child of eight is "ineligible," but I have advised children under the high school age not to take part. It stands to reason that no child of eight, of and by herself, can win one of the larger awards in such a test as this has been.

Mrs. J. R. B., Chicopee Falls—I am very sorry but I could not answer your question without telling you that your selection is right or wrong. I am not permitted to do that.

Mrs. E. K. H., Roslindale—There is no objection to your acting as your husband's amanuensis.

Mrs. M. W. B., Lynn—Use your latest (present) address on the wrapper.

C. D. G., State street—In a sense, I suppose all the Test Drawings may be called "trick" pictures. What I meant was that in this Test there have been no concealed or semi-concealed, no hidden or half-hidden objects which have any bearing on Correct Titles.

C. C., Lynn—There is no reason why the artist may not use the same title for two or more drawings.

DO YOUR BEST.

F. S. P., West Roxbury—I have no idea what a "hen-hussey" may be, but it is spelled that way (with the "e" in "hussey") in the Index.

L. C. B., Marshfield—Do the best you can.

J. M. Howard, R. I.—To indulge in a play upon words is to make playful use of a double meaning of a word by way of sport or jest; in other words, to "pun." Note particularly, in this definition, the words "playful," "sport" and "jest."

D. D., Providence—The statement has been made several times that "Requiescat" is not the Correct Title of No. 46. Discard it. There is a much better title for that picture in the List of Titles printed with it.

B. C., Boston—The artist is not restricted to any one dictionary. He may quote any dictionary as his authority.

W. B. M., Boston—List of Titles No. 39 begins with "Across the Fields"; List No. 40 begins with "The Fool."

M., Boston—In writing your titles you should use capital letters whenever and wherever they are used in the List of Titles.

George D., Salem—Do not send in the entire List of Titles as it was printed each day. Send in only the One Title you select from each List as your idea of the Correct Title.

To Relieve Subway Jam

Boston American Correspondent and Manager Dana of the Elevated Present Views on Five-Cent Fares for Jamaica Plain Line

The other day the Boston American published a letter calling attention to the suggestion of a correspondent concerning the use of the South Huntington avenue line—that a five-cent fare without the privilege of transfer could be given to all who ride on this line, and those desiring to enter the subway or to secure a transfer to any point would be compelled to pay the additional five-cent fare.

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Jackson has requested me to reply at once to your communication of April 28 propounding a certain question as to the South Huntington avenue line. The approximate traffic on the South Huntington avenue line from Jamaica Plain is as follows:

There board the cars between Jamaica Plain carhouse and Arlington street entrance to the subway 16,000 people a day, and of those 16,000 there have left the cars between Jamaica Plain carhouse and the entrance to the subway 7,000. In other words, more than half of the people who board the car desire to enter the subway. On a basis of routing a line of cars for the greatest good to the greatest number, to require 9,000 people to transfer to go into the subway for the convenience of 7,000 people having an additional fare privilege would hardly seem fair.

You may be interested to know that the trustees have authorized and will shortly announce a five-cent fare privilege for people along Huntington avenue on the line that runs between Longwood avenue and the subway so that people may have the five-cent far between Longwood avenue and Arlington street, which would be the first privilege of the reduced fare on Huntington avenue for local riders.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) EDWARD DANA,
General Manager.

We publish also a rebuttal to Mr. Dana's statement from our correspondent:

Editor Boston American:

Thanks for letting me see Mr. Dana's reply. May I be permitted to rebut it as follows:

The conditions in the subway are notoriously abhorrent. The purpose of the letter to Mr. Jackson dated April 28 was to offer a suggestion for reducing the crush in the subway. To the suggestion contained therein Mr. Dana replies as follows:

There board the cars between Jamaica Plain carhouse and Arlington street entrance to the subway 16,000 people a day, and of these 16,000 there have left the cars between Jamaica Plain carhouse and the entrance to the subway 7,000.

By this statement and his own figures Mr. Dana admits that 7,000 or 44 per cent. of those riding on the cars suggested prefer not to enter the subway. Why charge this 7,000 people a ten-cent fare? He then follows with the statement:

In other words more than half of the people who board the cars desire to enter the subway.

This is where Mr. Dana is entirely wrong and makes an assertion which cannot be sustained by any evidence whatever. He says "more than half the people desire to enter the subway."

They do not desire to enter the subway, but having paid a ten-cent fare, they do desire to be carried as far toward their ultimate destination as the ten-cent fare will take them. It can be asserted with confidence that of the 9,000 people he refers to as entering the subway, at least 80 per cent. leave the subway at Boylston street or Park street, the remaining 20 per cent. continuing along by transfer.

The letter contains no suggestion of relief of the subway crush. The merit of the original suggestion is emphasized by this answer. If the cars continue on the Boylston street surface to Park square at a five-cent fare the 80 per cent. who now leave the subway at Boylston and Park streets would gladly avail themselves of the reduced rate and leave the cars at Park square to that extent relieving the crush in the subway. According to Mr. Dana's own figures, this plan would give a five-cent fare to at least 25,000 people daily and take all the Jamaica Plain cars out of the subway.

The figures given by Mr. Dana indicate only inbound traffic. The outbound traffic is no doubt considerably heavier. This is where the greatest benefit would accrue to the traveling public. By taking the Jamaica Plain cars out of the subway the traffic is obviously reduced in the subway. By giving a five-cent fare from Park square, an invitation to ride is extended which the ten-cent fare repels. All railroading experience shows it is the short haul that makes the money for the road.

Passion For Notoriety

Suicide of Pastor, Accused Wrongfully by Hysterical Girl, Lesson to People Against Judging Too Hastily

The hysterical charge made by a girl that her pastor had been guilty of improper conduct with her and the too ready and equally hysterical acceptance of her statement without question by her mother and by other excitable and excitement loving people, led to the death of a good man, who, though innocent, could not stand the disgrace of a false charge.

The confession of the girl that the charge was false does not recall the life of the innocent pastor. The girl, of course, cannot be punished adequately for her terrible lie. It was so entirely without an understandable motive that it must be put down to temporary insanity.

But the incident, so full of tragedy and evil, contains as everything does, the possibilities of some good. It is a lesson to people not to be too hasty in their judgment, especially too hasty in cases like this. There has developed today a passion for notoriety, which has become almost an obsession among some boys and girls. In the pursuit of it, they lose all sense of honor, self-respect and decency.

Flapper hysteria needs to be watched and guarded against. Many a man south of the Mason and Dixon line has been lynched or burned to death upon the lying statement of some woman, insane for notoriety, however degrading. Excitement loving people are all too ready to believe, since believing means excitement.

Letter to the Editor

Firemen's Age Limit

Editor Boston American:

May I request your attention to the fact that the young men of our city are being discriminated against in regard to the maximum age limit for the fire department.

The Boston Fire Department is the only department in this great Commonwealth of Massachusetts that comes under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission that bars a man from taking the examination after he has passed his thirtieth birthday.

In every other city and town in this State of Massachusetts a man is allowed the privilege of taking the examination until he reaches his thirty-fifth birthday.

When, during the war, we were in the service of our country, the fire commissioner appointed men thirty-five years of age and in one case the man appointed was thirty-seven years of age. But when we returned home the thirty-year limit was placed in force again. If this is not an act of injustice to the veterans of our city, what is?

I appeal to you to use your powerful pen to rectify this unjust, unfair maximum age limit set for the Boston Fire Department and have it raised to the thirty-five-year limit.

Editorials from your pen brought about the Constitutional Convention in this State in 1917.

Editorials from your pen will, without doubt, bring about public ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway and the 5-cent fare in Boston.

Now, for justice's sake, investigate this age question and compel the city fathers to rectify the matter.

THERE ARE EVEN MINISTERS WHO ARE BAD ACTORS

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

ESSENTIALLY there is no more conflict between Church and Stage than there is between Religion and Science.

Only the lesser personalities of any one of those spheres of interest can quarrel with one another. Those who see with really human eyes must discern the essential harmony of all human concerns.

It is quite apart from the large and inclusive view of these interests to inveigh against the theatre as such because some Thespians lead dissolute lives.

Nor is the Church as an institution rightly condemned in the fact that some clergymen are "bad actors."

A "good actor" glorifies either institution as such. And this applies as much to organized religion as it does to organized dramatic art.

Not on Trial

That is to say, the theatre is no more on trial than is the church. And the latter is no less on trial than is the former. In a democratic society, no institution is fixed. The democratic life is fluid, not static.

All our institutions must prove their use. The fact that any particular institution has an old and long record of honorable service, does, indeed, give it a claim upon the reverence of the present generation.

But even reverence is neither warrant nor guaranty of survival.

Consider organized religion as such without distinction or sect. Statistics show that less than half of the people of the United States claim any degree of affiliation with any phase of traditional faith.

Does that mean that half of our people are irreligious?

By no means. Certain no more than that the affiliated other half are, by that token, religious and spiritual and moral.

But it does mean two things. One, that church membership is no longer a test of religiousness and morality. The other, that organized religion stands self-convicted of inefficiency in an age and a civilization in which it can no longer command the fairly general and obviously enthusiastic devotion of the people.

For the people need and want religion and the sublimation of their lives and their idealization of their interests and relationships.

Partly to Blame

Partly, at least, the church is to blame that the theatre has not continued upon the high plane which was characteristic of the drama in the days of the miracle plays and morality plays, when the stage was a most effective co-operator towards the spiritualization of life.

Be all that as it may, and though those ancient days can never be recalled, the theatre remains potentially one of the most efficient means for educating, refining and improving the individual and society.

With mutual appreciation, the people of the church and the people of the theatre might well add their respective institutions so effectively, as to come nearer to filling the houses of worship and better fulfilling the functions of the houses of dramatic art.

At any rate, there is no need for these votaries to engage in fisticuffs. Even religionists and theatrists should be sufficiently "good actors" to try to love one another.

YOURS is an unusual fate if born today, and one that would try the soul of a Titan. There is nothing which you might not do, and very little that you probably will. This would be of no misfortune in itself, if it were not for the fact that right through life you will be conscious of your possibilities, and whether you fail or succeed, you will know the reason for either, and you will have only yourself to blame or to praise, for you know that your whole life depends upon the cultivation of your will power.

During the coming year you will be seriously deceived by one of your intimate associates, and will suffer financially on account of it.

A child born today will be inventive, ingenious but weak and easily misled.

DOES YOUR WIFE THINK YOU OUGHT TO CHANGE JOBS?

There cannot be happiness in a home where the wife is constantly reminding the husband that she cannot understand why he is not as successful as Mr. So and So, and she thinks he ought to change to some other business, that she is disappointed in him.

It is the duty of a man and wife to talk over matters of this sort, with the idea of increasing the family income, but when a wife intimates that her husband's income is less than that of another man, because he is incompetent, there is trouble.

It is simply impossible for some men to make as much as others.

The line of work being different may mean different standards of reward for labor performed, and it may be that a man who has worked years to become expert in his line feels, and is convinced, that he could not make as much money in any other line.

If a man has an idea that he would be a failure in another line he would be foolish to undertake it, for mental attitude counts big in a man's work.

A man's opinion about himself settles the question of success or failure so largely that none should engage in work because pushed to it by another.

SEEN AND HEARD

COUNCILLOR HENRY E. HAGAN says that he likes to see orders presented to the City Council with teeth in them. Said "teeth" to be located both in the upper and lower jaws.

COUNCILLOR JAMES T. MORIARTY uses strong language at times. He also has a peculiar dislike for a certain breed of "constables." During his second attack on them he likened them to that animal whose perfume has that "linger longer" presence, that one makes every haste to get as far away as possible.

Apparently CONGRESSMAN PETER F. TAGUE has a lot of politicians on the fence as to just what he intends to do about taking the position of Fire Commissioner at the end of this session of Congress. Those "in the know" at City Hall say that he will be the next "Commish." Those on the outside say it will be "Congressman" for another year.

After years of constant agitation, REPRESENTATIVE COLEMAN E. KELLEY of Dorchester says he has at last received definite assurance that the city of Boston will this Summer provide a regular series of band concerts for the Savin Hill playgrounds.

Few, if any, know more about municipal law than does WILFRED J. DOYLE, assistant city clerk. His decisions on matters pertaining to parliamentary procedure of the city's administrative body, the City Council, are rendered with ease and dispatch.

JOSEPH WALKER'S decision to run against HENRY CABOT LODGE recalls that Walker was responsible for the Senator's election the last time he was chosen by the Legislature. Walker, then Speaker of the House, could have been elected over Lodge had he desired.

CHARLES J. MAHONEY, the good-natured and efficient legislative agent of the Railroad Trainmen, will be absent from State House corridors for two weeks. He has gone to Toronto for the annual convention of his organization.

CAPTAIN GEORGE A. PARKER has received more than 4,000 applications for the sixty new places in the State Constabulary. The business depression is responsible for the deluge.

REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN M. LOMASNEY has found out that the Supreme and Superior Courts are "farming out" an unusually large number of cases to masters and auditors. The fees last year amounted to $85,000.

If REPRESENTATIVE HENRY ACHIN of Lowell has his way about it, the Legislature will pass a bill to give an income-tax exemption of $250 in favor of every child in the family.

JULIUS GODDARD of the State Treasury Department says the officers of the newly-formed South End Co-operative Bank, organized for special benefit of negro citizens, can never be accused of not being on the job. Every meeting, Goddard says, has been attended by at least fourteen of the eighteen directors.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON JUPITER'S GRAVITATION

By Garrett P. Serviss

"How does the gravitation of the earth compare with the gravitation of the planet Jupiter? If the gravitation of the earth is causing its interior to be molten hot would not the gravitation of Jupiter cause it to be molten hot to its very surface?—A. P. B., Chicago.

THE total force of gravitation possessed by a planet depends upon the mass or amount of matter contained in the planet. Since Jupiter has a number of satellites revolving around it we know with considerable accuracy the relative gravitative force of Jupiter as compared with that of the earth. If we call the earth's mass or force of gravitation 1, then that of Jupiter is about 315 (different calculators vary a little).

This means that the attraction of Jupiter upon any body outside its surface would be 315 times as great as the attraction of the earth upon the same body, provided that the distance of the attracted body from the centre of Jupiter was the same as from the centre of the earth.

Jupiter's Surface Gravity

It means, too, that if our moon were revolving around Jupiter instead of around the earth (at the same mean distance), its month would be shortened to less than a day and a half. Yet, singular as it may appear, the force of Jupiter's surface gravity, i. e., the weight of bodies lying on its surface, is not greater than the surface gravity of the earth in the same proportion that Jupiter's total force of attraction exceeds the earth's.

This is due to the slighter mean density and great relative size of Jupiter. Its volume exceeds the earth's about as 1,300 to 1, but its density is less than a quarter as great as the earth's, so that, as we have stated above, its mass (or weight) is only 315 times the earth's. It weighs only a quarter more than a globe of water of its size would weigh.

The rule for finding the surface gravity of any planet as compared with the earth's is to multiply the planet's density by its diameter, expressed in terms of the earth's density and diameter. Thus, Jupiter's diameter is about 11 times the earth's diameter, its density is 0.24 of the earth's density, and 11 multiplied by 0.24 equals 2.64, which is the relative force of gravity on Jupiter as compared with the earth.

There is another way of making this calculation which may enable you better to see the reason why Jupiter, though having 315 times the total attractive force of the earth, is able to give to bodies on its surface only about two and three-fifths times the weight that the same bodies would have on the earth. For this purpose you must remember that the force of gravitation varies inversely as the square of the distance, and that the point from which the distance is measured is the centre of the attracting planet.

Attraction Force Figured

Now, since Jupiter has 11 times the diameter of the earth, bodies on its surface are 11 times as far from its centre as similar bodies are from the centre of the earth; therefore the attractions upon them is the square of 11, or 121, times less than it would be if the distance from the centre were no greater than it is on the earth.

At the earth's surface Jupiter's total attraction is 315 times the earth's, so that, to find out what the effective attraction at Jupiter's surface is, we must divide 315 by 121, and the quotient, 2.6, representing the relative force of Jupiter's surface attraction, is practically the same as the result before obtained, and would be precisely the same if we had used exact units in both cases.

But anyhow, we see that if we were suddenly to transfer us to Jupiter we would hardly be able to stand upright. A man starting from the earth with 200 pounds of individuals to carry would be overwhelmed with more than a quarter of a ton when he landed on Jupiter. The child of five years would become heavier than the average man. But on our way from the earth to Jupiter we would first gradually lose our weight as we receded from the earth, and then gradually recover it, with curious interest, as we approached Jupiter.

As to the effect of Jupiter's great gravitative force on the interior state of his huge globe, we cannot speak with the same degree of certainty as of the state of affairs on its surface. It is true that the pressure must be enormous, but whether this produces a molten state within we cannot say, for the pressure itself would tend to prevent molecular motion.

EX LIBRIS

By Zoe B. Faber

ANOTHER of the Spell series is just off the press. It is "The Spell of the Rhine," by Frank Roy Fraprie. This book adds very materially to the delight of the set covering Belgium, Italy, the Holy Land, Switzerland, England and various other countries. For your information, if you are not already familiar with these wholly delightful books of travel, we will add that most of the books have been written out of the ordinary. The books are beautifully bound and illustrated. To own the collection is to have something that will be a joy for years. The Page Company are the publishers.

Mr. Fraprie has dwelt almost entirely on the charm of the olden days, past history, legends and traditions of lives that are long since veiled in the mist of many, many years.

Throughout the entire book one feels the years that Mr. Fraprie has spent in the Rhine country and the love that he has for its physical beauties. His is no superficial acquaintance such as many Americans have, but rather a deep friendship which long ago ripened into a devoted duty of all that the Rhine has to offer in beauty of landscape and lovely folk-lore.

If you appreciate the beautiful in travel books, you will want this book in your possession, whether it adds to the rest of the companion volumes or is only the beginning of your collection.
